

Mayoral Campaign Picking Up Steam

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
Francis R. Koenig, the Democratic Liberal candidate for mayor followed up his Wednesday night jab at his Republican opponent, James J. Tyrrell, with a roundhouse right at Thursday afternoon's debate sponsored by the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

On Wednesday night, at the Temple Emanuel debate, Koenig, who up to then had refrained from publicly attacking his Republican opponent led with, "I don't want to see our city in the hands of anyone who has a complete lack of knowledge of city affairs, administrative functions and fiscal policies."

Thursday afternoon Koenig came back with, "I know many of you are tired from rehearsing for your famed Kiwanis Kapers, but if it isn't too late, I would like to recommend another actor for the lead in your production."

Rules Out Actor, Promises
"After last night's debate at Temple Emanuel and after reading the brochure of my Republican opponent, I know that my Republican opponent, without a doubt, could qualify for the lead in the Broadway production of Promises, Promises."

"But of course," Koenig added, "I am sure you all know that city hall cannot be run either by an actor or on promises."

Tyrrell did not respond to Koenig's personal attack. He opened his remarks with, "I didn't come here to deal in personalities. I came to discuss the issues."

And the three candidates, which included Bernard Singer, the Conservative, did just that, offered their respective rebuttals and fielded questions from the audience.

The candidates were asked their opinion on "equalizing" the city sales tax with the county. All three agreed that it was unfair for Kingston residents to pay more sales tax than county residents and that something should be done to attain equity.

Koenig and Tyrrell agreed that the city should consider its own financial position in any dealings with the county on the sales tax issue.

The question was also raised as to whether Cooper Lake the city reservoir, should be expanded. All three candidates agreed that water was a vital need in the city and that its future supply should be assured.

A Rejection

A suggestion to make the city recreation department autonomous from city government with its own tax raising powers and borrowing powers was rejected by Tyrrell and Singer. Koenig, however, said that the matter was open to discussion.

Koenig's main thrust at Tyrrell was that he (Tyrrell) was proposing increased city services on one hand, (more police, higher salaries, etc.) while calling for lower taxes on the other.

Tyrrell replied that there was plenty of money coming in that wasn't shown in the 1969 budget. "We have the money to meet our commitments, he said. "We can start with the $119,000 surplus from the 1968 budget."

Singer Differs

Singer and Koenig differed on the matter of their respective qualifications for the office of mayor. Singer maintained that his 30 years in business made him better qualified than Koenig's eight years in public office.

Koenig and Tyrrell differed on Urban Renewal, specifically Koenig's part in the 1967 controversy over the program. Tyrrell said that Koenig had gone to New York City to consult with federal officials "without the permission of the agency" and had succeeded only in holding the program up for 18 months.

Koenig said he had taken it upon himself as president of the Common Council in 1967 to go to New York City and try to solve the problems (of urban renewal). "Through meetings with federal officials we solved those problems," he said.

The program was moderated by Len Cane, executive director of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, who congratulated the Kiwanis Club for an outstanding public service in presenting the debate. "Coming from a member of the Lions Club that's quite a compliment," he concluded.

$100,000 Fire-- Vols Heroes in Halting Spread

By WALTER S. CLARK

LAKE KATRINE

A raging fire that destroyed four buildings on the ERA Electric Construction Co. property on Leggs Mills Road Thursday afternoon, was prevented from spreading to the post office and nearby trailer homes by heroic efforts of volunteer firefighters from several area units.

The loss in the blaze was estimated at $100,000 by the owners.

Two Firemen Felled

Two firemen were felled by smoke as they assisted in battling the roaring flames that swept out of control for more than three hours. The volunteers were taken to a hospital.

Jack Goldstein, president of ERA, and an employee narrowly escaped serious injury or possible death, as they made futile attempts to drive some heavy equipment away from the burning buildings.

Fire officials said the fire was the worst to occur in the Ulster Hose Co. district.

Overcome by smoke as they manned hoses at the scene were Vols Ronnie North, 30, of Rosendale and Alton Roosa of 885 Nicholas Avenue, Kingston. Both are members of Ulster Hose Co. 5. They were given oxygen at the scene by attendants of Doctors Ambulance before being rushed to Kingston Hospital where they were treated and released.

The disastrous blaze was reported at 1:30 p. m. and Ulster Hose Co. in command of Chief William Williams sped to the scene with three pumps, an aerial ladder truck and the rescue vehicle. On arrival Chief Williams radioed for assistance and a dispatcher at the County Fire Control Center sent fire units from Mt. Marion-Ruby, Glasco, Sawkill, Hurley and Port Ewen to the scene to assist.

A unit from Saugerties moved into the district on standby alert at Ulster Hose Co. station.

Nearby Sites Guarded

Because of strong gusts of wind that carried burning embers some distance from the fire area, Chief Williams had pumps stationed across the road to protect the post office, a market and a large number of trailer homes.

Fire officials maintained a vigil over a 100,000 gasoline tank nearby, after fear was expressed by some that it might explode. "It would have blown up most of Lake Katrine if it went off," one fireman remarked.

The fire was not declared under control until 5 p.m., Williams said. Firemen were at the scene until 10:30 and at 7:30 a.m. today volunteer firefighters returned to wet down smoldering debris that had rekindled.

The president of ERA told a Freeman reporter that he and a foreman, Charles Mixdorf and Bill Beckert and Willie Cameron had been cleaning up the yard around the buildings, when suddenly a gust of wind swept burning rubbish to a pile of plastic pipe nearby. The pipe burst into flames and the fire spread rapidly to a frame shed and then ignited two other one-story buildings and the three-story structure.

In Trucks When It Hit

Goldstein said that he and Mixdorf tried to save some heavy equipment. "We were in the trucks when the smoke and heat hit us," Goldstein said. "We fell from the vehicles and hit the ground. We luckily managed to crawl to safety. It happened so fast it was unbelievable. It was like a bad dream."

Goldstein said he would see a physician as he suffered from smoke. He said his foreman also would be attended by a physician.

The ERA president said the four buildings were a total loss. Also destroyed were four trucks, two backhoes, a bulldozer, two trench diggers and three trailer units.

Goldstein placed the loss to the buildings at $50,000. The total loss in the blaze was approximately $100,000, he said.

The Moratorium---No Mind-Changing Here

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

How effective was the National Moratorium on Wednesday in changing the minds of Ulster County citizens and their attitude about the Vietnam War?

Apparently, if The Freeman man-on-the-street poll taken Thursday is any indication, it had no mind-changing effect at all and if anything, tended to strengthen the position of the President's supporters as well as those who supported the Moratorium.

Mrs. Milton Sommers of Saugerties, who felt the Moratorium was acceptable "as long as it was peaceful" said the day's events didn't alter her thinking one way or another.

Agreeing with her was Harold Flynn, a summer resident of Morgan Hill.

The opposite view was taken by Mrs. Frieda Hallesen of Mt. Marion who volunteered that "the President is doing everything he can." Mrs. Hallesen added that she was distressed with several of the young persons distributing literature in the Kingston Plaza Wednesday. "If you didn't accept one of their pamphlets they were very rude," she said.

Mrs. Arlene Tisch, GOP candidate for tax collector in the Town of Olive was also willing to give her opinion saying, "The Moratorium didn't do any harm . . . perhaps it did some good. She said she personally felt the same way after the observance as before.

Did the day's events change the mind of Humberto Gonzales of Ellenville? "No," he said emphatically. "I stick with the president and how he is handling it."

John Christiana of Kingston said he didn't think anyone's mind could be changed. "Their opinions were formed a long while ago," he said he didn't believe in the Moratorium.

A man who marched down Broadway Wednesday night, protesting the war—Hurley Democratic Supervisor Robert Schneller, stands by his strong position favoring the moratorium. "It's a bad issue," he said, "the government made a mistake, it's time we recognized it and rectified it." Schneller, reflecting on the fact that many Democrats went against their former president Lyndon B. Johnson and his posture on the war, said "We're not going to stop protesting just because we have a Republican president."

Mrs. Blanche Belin, who went to the rally in Poughkeepsie, said, "I want the boys to come home. I don't want to see all those boys slaughtered. I was and am for the Moratorium."

"No, no," said Mrs. Ethel Vossberg of Mt. Marion. "I didn't change my mind . . . I think the whole event was Communist inspired . . . My husband kept his car lights on . . . No one likes war but there seems to be no alternative but to continue."

The Moratorium didn't change the mind of Larry Helzer of Saugerties, either. It didn't agree with the Vietnam War to begin with. I never have, I never will."

Dick Fredenberg said the Moratorium did not affect his thinking. "I'm for ending the war," he said, "but we have to be concerned about the involvement, we have been in it for years . . . we should give the president full rein . . . there are many circumstances we may not know of . . ."

"I didn't change my mind," said Joseph Ferraro of Glasco. "I was and still am against the moratorium."

"Not at all," echoed John Haas of Kingston, "after seeing the reports on television, I'm more than ever against the Moratorium."

Donald Ferraro, Democratic candidate for tax collector in Esopus said he felt much the same way. "If anything, I'm behind the president more than ever," he said, adding, "all it did was give aid to the enemy."

Mr. and Mrs. Drew Craig of Mt. Marion were of the same mind on the question. They favor Nixon's position and were still are against the Moratorium. Mrs. Craig volunteered that she had a son in service and commented that the war is "a long one and a sad one but what are you going to do?"

Marbletown Zoning Ordinance-- 'Busiest' Public Hearing Held

By SHANE CROSBY

STONE RIDGE

The Marbletown Zoning Commission ended three years of preparation and discussion here Thursday with its busiest public hearing to date attended by more than 300 vocal residents.

The final session of the commission marked the first time pro-zoning residents equaled the comments of anti-zoning factions in the hectic history of zoning hearings in the town.

The commission is now scheduled to present its revised zoning ordinance of Marbletown to the town board for at least two more public sessions. Action will then be taken on the matter.

Calls for a vote by the people were heard from many residents, but the commission said no vote could be taken that would be binding on the town board.

No changes in the proposed law are anticipated before presentation to the town board. Comments at the hearing were generally confined to the need for or objection against the entire measure.

"It (the ordinance) needs a great deal of improvement," said Dr. Ted T. Grenda of Stone Ridge, "however, it is important that the zoning ordinance be passed and then improved upon."

William Collins of High Falls commented: "I like the rural nature of this community. The ordinance will maintain this and will not infringe on it. I support it."

The proposed ordinance, a 68-page law designed to control development in the township, details requirements for new construction and planning of private and commercial properties so as to avoid "haphazard" expansion of the town.

The three-hour session in the elementary school was kept orderly with residents being given five minutes each to make their feelings known. Lengthy outbursts were uncommon at the hearing, presided over by Mrs. George Numrich of Lomontville, a member of the commission.

Without saying he was for or against the proposal, town supervisor Roy Webber, said he was present "to get the general feeling" of the townspeople.

Said Webber: "It's better to see the 300 or 400 people here tonight than to see the 50 who showed up at the first hearing" last year.

Speaking for the newly formed Ad Hoc Committee for Zoning, Mrs. Thayer Willis of Lomontville, said she is opposed to a vote and continued her attack on the businessmen's planned questionnaire that she called last week "loaded against the ordinance."

She challenged the businessmen to cite "specific examples" of how the proposed law would injure their operations and said that the planned law is intended to "protect property owners and residents," not "injure them."

Louis A. DiDonna, the Kingston attorney retained by the businessmen, read a five and a half page statement to the commission and said the association was in favor of enactment of local laws on specific problems as well as enforcement of present laws rather than adoption of the zoning law.

Vernon Stoutenburgh, spokesman for the Businessmen's Association, said he would want to see the results of a vote to "settle the issue" that he said has placed "neighbor against neighbor."

Wilkie said the state's intent in keeping the zoning issue off the ballot was based on the complex nature of the question. He said it is more than a "yes or no" issue, with some favoring the proposal as it is and some favoring change one way or the other, while still more are opposed to the entire plan.

WARRENCIA

A friend of ours whose opinions didn't coincide with those of the anti-war people decided to fly the flag Wednesday morning. So, bright and early, he hoisted it up the flagpole in front of his Kingston home and left for work.

Right after, a contingent of 15-year-olds from a private school across the street rang the doorbell and politely requested the lady of the house to lower the flag to half-staff in honor of the moratorium.

The lady refused, saying the objecting group had its particular views on the subject so she certainly was entitled to hers. At this point, one of the 15-year-olds lamented, "But, lady, you just don't understand..."

And that might be just the problem. Who does understand?

The issue of the Vietnam war is fairly understandable since most Americans would like to see it end. But, how to end it seems to be the slippery solution squirming through fingers like quicksilver.

To peaceably demonstrate against something is fine provided an alternative is offered, but to demonstrate without offering a constructive answer borders simply on an attention-getting public display of juvenile unreasonableness.

What alternative has been offered by the dissenters except a complete pullout?

Last year, their alternative was to stop the bombing of the north and Hanoi would come to the Paris peace tables and negotiate a settlement. Lyndon B. Johnson did stop the bombing and Senator Eugene McCarthy did become a hero.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese did come to the Paris peace table, seemingly only to negotiate complete American withdrawal and a Communist political absorption of South Vietnam.

Now we seem to have arrived at the rather inglorious stage in our nation's character where a 'bug-out' is the only acceptable answer. Obviously, that's what the demonstrators want and it's what Hanoi wants.

"But is it really what the majority of American people want? Many of the standards of the past are being presently challenged and disparaged and presumably honoring one's word is one of them."

But we do have a commitment to Saigon, the 'domino theory' notwithstanding, and part of that commitment is an honorable peace.

Undoubtedly, Nixon has a plan for a negotiated peace and at the same time Vietnamizing the war and withdrawing American troops.

Undoubtedly, Nixon has a plan for a negotiated peace and even Hubert Humphrey attested to that last week. But, can Hanoi be bargained into listening?

Not as long as they believe the dissidents represent American opinion.

For Memorial Restoration

A Fund-Raising Drive Downtown

A fund-raising campaign has been initiated in the Ponckhockie area of the city to provide for the restoration of the veterans memorial at Delaware and Lindsley Avenues recently damaged by vandals.

A recent photograph published in The Freeman showing the deterioration and damage of vandals prompted action of the Fifth Ward Civic Association of the area which embraces the former Fifth Ward.

The Executive Committee of the association announced there will be a door-to-door canvass to raise the required repair funds. Letters requesting donations also will be sent to those who have moved from the Ponckhockie section.

A concerted effort is being made to revitalize the Fifth Ward Civic Association and a meeting has been scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 26 at St. Ursula's Auditorium at 3 p.m. New officers will be elected and a program presented to establish a continuing memorial maintenance fund and committee. The committee said it believes that the old Fifth Ward has one of the three remaining veterans memorials in the city.

Contributions may be sent to Mrs. Augustus Parker, treasurer, Fifth Ward Civic Association, 73 Crane Street, Kingston, 12401.

Vandals in an attempt to steal the eagle at the top of the monument forced the wings out of shape. A nearby resident witnessed the vandalism and chased the vandals, but was too late to prevent the damage.

The cap stone was found to be cracked and will require replacement or patching. The crack follows down the face of the monument to the bronze tablet and across the top of the tablet. No less than two dozen of the granite blocks of the memorial are loose.

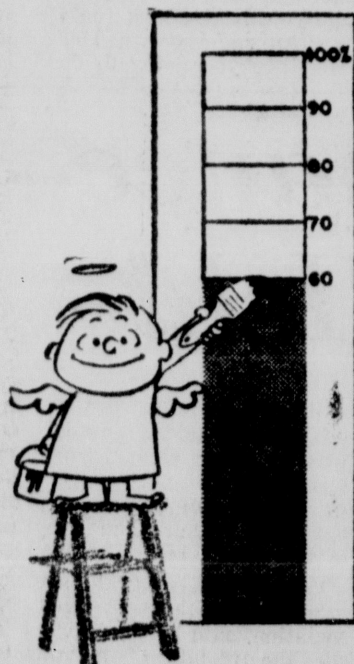

Repairs are now of prime importance before the cold weather in order to prevent further deterioration.

Elections Board Show Cause Today on Majestic Matter

Albany On Oct. 14 in Troy, Justice Conway's decision allowed the committee on vacancies to act again and name a candidate, stipulating it may not name a man for more than one post. Attorney Egan is appealing this latest decision. This latest decision would permit the committee on vacancies to again name Majestic for one of the two places on the Nov. 4 ballot he seeks.

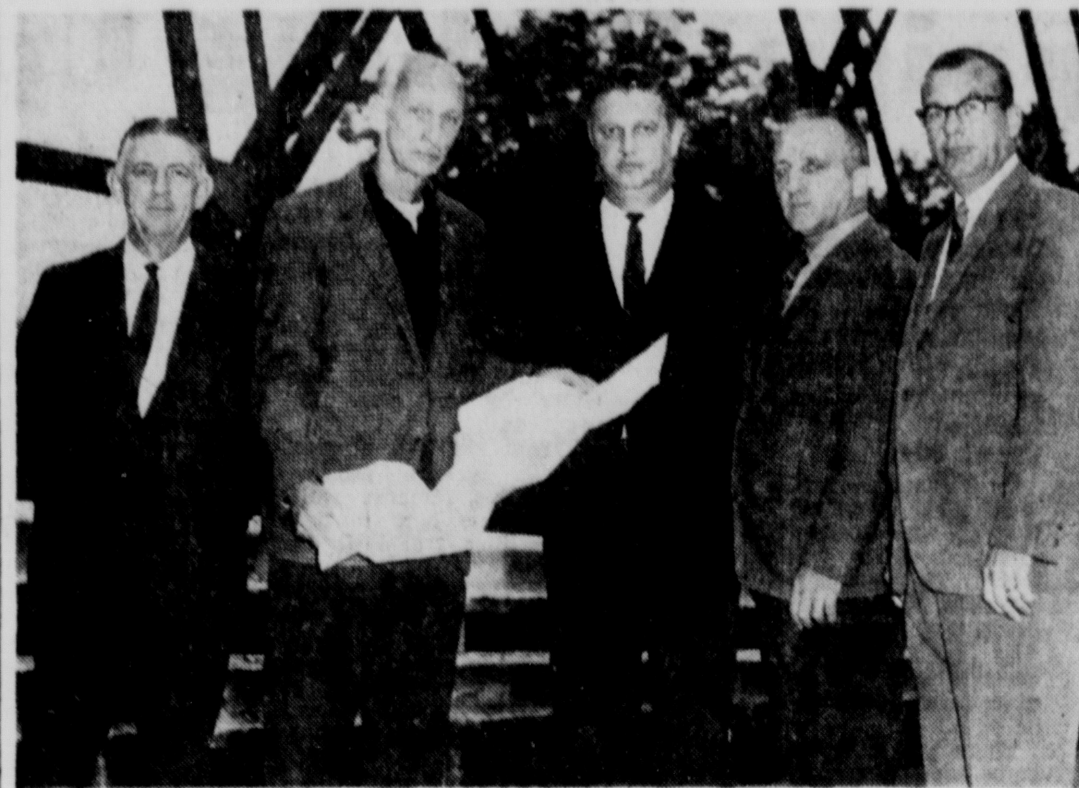

Presiding Judge of the Appellate Division, J. Clarence Herlihy of Albany signed the show cause order by John Egan, who represents three Gardiner taxpayers. John Lynch of the County Attorney's Office is representing the Board of Elections.

UR on Uptown Park Site--
End of October on Bids

KINGSTON James G. Connors, Kingston Urban Renewal director, announced today that the agency is exerting every effort to advertise for bids on the Uptown Parking Structure by the end of October. Connors said that bid documents will be available to contractors in plenty of time to have the structure in use by late 1970.

The design-construct method of obtaining bids for the parking facility will be used and the agency is presently working out the technical and legal aspects of this method of constructing the public facility.

"It is common throughout New York State and the country for private enterprise to utilize this method of providing a parking facility, but it will be the first one constructed by a public agency in New York State when we successfully bring it about in Kingston. As a public agency, operating under New York State municipal

$1,388 Loot
At Marlboro PO

MARLBORO Authorities reported today that a burglary at the local post office netted $1,388 in loot, which consisted of stamps and cash.

Postal Inspector P. F. Wade of the Poughkeepsie Central Office, who investigated with BCI Investigator Joseph Franke of Highland, said approximately $150 in cash was taken from drawers of the clerks in the office. The balance of the loot consisted of stamps.

Wade said the burglar — or burglars — forced their way through a door leading to the boiler room of the building on Western Avenue sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday. A large hole was punched in the plasterboard wall and the thieves entered the main office.

The safe was pushed to an area away from the windows, where it was ripped open, authorities said.

Killed in Crash

NEWBURGH A 13-year-old Kingston girl was killed Thursday night and two other persons were injured, one critically, as the result of a grinding two-car head-on collision on Route 9W about 600 feet north of Balmville Road, Town of Newburgh. Barbara Brown of 148 Miller's Lane, Kingston, was a passenger in a car driven by Susan M. Wirtz, 21, of Wood Street, Mahopac. The cause of death will be determined after an autopsy. The girl was pronounced dead at the scene.

The second vehicle was operated by Gregory E. Ryan, 35, of 34 Mayer Road, Highland. He was brought to St. Luke's Hospital suffering lacerations of the face and internal injuries.

Criminal Action Pending

Miss Wirtz was taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie. Her condition was listed as critical. State Police reported she suffered severe lacerations of the legs and face, internal injuries and a possible skull fracture.

State Police reports noted that Ryan was traveling north in the southbound lane on Route 9W at 7:40 p.m., when his car collided head-on with the southbound vehicle operated by Miss Wirtz.

Authorities said criminal action is pending.

The fatality was investigated by State Police Capt. John McCarthy, BCI Investigator Harry Mills, Sgt. Harry Hayes and Trooper Wayne Van Deusen of the Newburgh substation.

TV Meeting--
A Clarification

TOWN OF KINGSTON A motion made by Patton and seconded by Justice Maurice V. Reedy approved extension of the firm's contract until the next regular Town Board session Nov. 3 at 7 p.m. At that time Kingston Cablevision will be requested to present a solution to the pole installations, an agreement with the utilities involved for hook up on existing utility poles and a final commitment to complete service specified in the franchise with the Town of Kingston, Patton concluded.

Supervisor Patton said this was not a protest meeting, but a special Town Board meeting. He also said that Kingston Cablevision does not hold an exclusive franchise in the town and they are not required nor did Kingston Cablevision agree to use all existing poles. William Krajci, manager of the firm, attended the session with the firm's attorney, John Larkin.

After an open discussion, the general consensus was that the main problems were the placement of poles on private property, the lack of consideration shown in placing these poles on private property and the length of time the poles would be utilized before connecting on existing utility poles.

Both Larkin and Krajci apologized for the inconvenience. Supervisor Patton said, and they said they would negotiate with any person having a complaint about the placement of poles. Those having complaints may contact Krajci, Larkin or Supervisor Patton.

Lottery Plan to Senate

Draft of the 19s Still Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to draft 19-year-olds first under a lottery system appears likely to win House approval next week but its fate in the Senate is an open question.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the plan aimed at giving 18-year-olds advance notice of their draft prospects by a surprise 31-0 vote Thursday.

But reports from the Senate

House leaders, who believe they can block efforts to tack wholesale revisions on the bill, almost immediately scheduled floor action for late next week, indicating there is little hard opposition there.

indicated Armed Services Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., was reluctant to put the bill on the floor where critics, who count Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have a host of proposed revisions including elimination of all college draft deferments. Stennis could not be reached for comment but Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who favors elimination of the

An effort to eliminate all college deferments was ruled out of order by a 21-10 roll-call vote in the House committee that indicated the strategy that may be used to block draft amendments on the House floor.

The elimination of college draft deferments was proposed by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo. Deferments "in time of a shooting war one of the biggest mistakes we have made," he said.

Other college deferment critics—including Kennedy and Reps. Otis G. Pike D-N.Y., and Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich.—contend deferments are unfair simply because they put the burden of fighting to men who don't have the academic ability or money to go to college.

Nixon's lottery plan is aimed at letting 18-year-olds know their draft prospects the following year so they can make career plans accordingly.

From Nixon: Reports, Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon reports to the nation by radio today on the rising cost of living and his appeals to government, business and labor to help curb inflation.

His radio address was scheduled for 4 p.m. EDT. It follows a mixed bag of economic indicators showing that while there are some signs the administration's anti-inflation drive is beginning to cool the economy, inflation still gnaws away at Americans' purchasing power.

There are indications the President will make a strong appeal to business and labor to follow the government's lead of fiscal restraint and voluntarily keep rein on price increases and wage demands.

The White House's leading economic advisers predicted Thursday that the cost of living and high interest rates would go down sometime soon. Government spokesmen for some time have been pointing to signs the administration's anti-inflation moves were beginning to take effect.

Reports from the Commerce Department Thursday showed that the rate of growth of the Gross National Product in the third quarter of the year and the annual rate of housing starts in September were both up, indicating no cooling of the economy.

However, signs showing a cooling came from the Federal industrial production down slightly in September, from the Commerce Department Wednesday saying the rate of growth of personal income was down; and from the Labor Department last week, showing unemployment up.

Nixon's decision to report directly to the people came after high level White House discussions during the past several days on the state of the economy and how to curb inflation.

Soviets Return Second, One Still Up

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets today brought their second spacecraft in two days back to a safe landing, leaving one ship still in orbit with two men aboard, Tass announced.

Soyuz 7, launched Sunday with three men aboard, made a soft landing in Central Asia north of Karaganda, close to the place where Soyuz 6 came down with its two-man crew Thursday.

Soyuz 7 was piloted by Lt. Col. Anatoli V. Filipchenko and carried two flight engineers, Vladislav N. Volkov and Viktor B. Gorbakto.

During its five-day flight, Soyuz 7 maneuvered within 500 yards of Soyuz 8 but did not link up with it. Soyuz 8 was expected to be brought back Saturday.

Earlier, Tass reported that out the program of their new day in space. The crew of Soyuz 6, Valery Kubasov and his commander, Lt. Col. Georgy Shonin, prepared to show scientists sample metals joined Thursday in a space welding experiment described by Tass as "unique."

Soviet scientists hailed the experiment, in which the molecular structures of metals are broken down and rebuilt, as a major step toward building orbital space stations, orbiting the earth and interplanetary craft.

Pro-U.S. View, Park Fate on Line

SEOUL (UPI) — President Park Chung-Hee voted early in the day today in a national referendum that will decide the fate of his pro-American administration as well as his own political future.

An estimated 10 million South Koreans were going to the polls to vote on a constitutional amendment that would permit the 52-year-old Park to seek a third four-year term as president in 1971.

Park, who came to power in a 1960 coup, has promised to resign if the voters reject the amendment. He has left his campaigning to members of his ruling Democratic Republican party. They say his continued leadership is necessary to maintain political and economic stability and to cope with the threat of continued aggression from Communist North Korea.

Voting at a polling station near his official residence two hours after the polls opened at 7 a.m. Park appeared confident of victory but declined to make any comment on the referendum if the voters reject the

If voters make a mark under a circle on the ballot, it means they are in favor of the amendment. If they place a mark under an X, it means they are opposed.

Those opposed to Park say the voting procedure gave the government a psychological advantage. "Every school child knows a circle on an examination paper means the answer is correct and an X means it is wrong," one said.

The opposition, led by the New Democratic party, says threats that the government would lapse into economic chaos if Park is not president is a form of political blackmail. Leaders in the ruling party predict at least 6 million voters will approve the revision, over.

rammed through the national assembly last month in a secret session that infuriated opposition lawmakers who were not told of the meeting until it was over.

Proper Planning Could Foil a Burglar

Here's a thought for would-be vacationers: to foil a house burglar, you should think like one. How would you do it yourself—rob your own house?

Figure that one and you can determine whether your house is burglar-proof. It has been estimated that a burglar is busy somewhere in the United States every 20 seconds.

How would a burglar determine that you are away?

If your telephone is disconnected or if the operator refers people to your vacation number. (It is far better to call everyone who matters and give them your away from the house number or address.)

If you've neglected to shut mail, newspapers, milk and other deliveries.

If you've given a newspaper story about your trip, including time of departure, date of return. (It is far better to offer the newspaper the fish tales and bear stories when you return.)

If well-intentioned neighbors are likely to tell everyone who asks that you are away. (Ask them to keep mum.)

How would an itinerant burglar decide that no one is at home?

The clean eerie stillness of a place is one giveaway. There is a lived-in look to an occupied house, even the perfectly manicured one, dog dish outside the door, an old shovel at the fence, a rake or expendable child's toy might be left about.

If a house is in total darkness for a long period. (Law enforcement officers suggest a light to keep burglars away. There are special lights that come on at night, go off in daylight.)

If all windows are closed and shades are neatly pulled down on hot nights. Upstairs windows should be left open a bit just to look "at home," but not enough to get the house soaked in case there is a severe storm.

If two cars are missing from the garage, and the doors are open. If the family needs two cars on vacation, lock the garage doors and hang something over the windows.

What would the robber find if he did get in?

Silver? They love it, but they don't usually want it if it is initiated. Stash it away at the neighbors, relatives or friends' homes. Some people bury it in an appropriate container in the backyard. (This is risky if you have a bad memory. Draw a map.)

Jewelry? Put it in a safe deposit box, if you have one. Or, leave it with relatives. (Or, take a small kit of the uninsured jewelry, and keep it in your purse.)

Paintings? Burglars scorned art in bygone days, but they now find the risk quite worthwhile. (These too should be stored with neighbors who might enjoy hanging them while you are away.)

Clothes? The fashionable

new burglar takes clothes. If he can't wear them, he'll sell them to thrift shops. You should send cleanable clothes to the dry cleaner and furs to storage, if you haven't done so.

Television? It doesn't make sense why burglars go to such trouble—but they'll take such large items and unload them quickly for a few dollars.

American women have a reputation for neat clean homes. A robber might be thrown off by an ironing board propped up near a window with some clothes and an iron as part of the scene.

The last person out of the house should lock the doors. It could mess up the best laid plans.

If it is any comfort, burglars seldom enter a house when the door is wide open, although people seldom risk, testing the theory.

One family did so inadvertently. They left the front door wide open when they were removing luggage, and then the chief locker went out the cellar door. This was recalled when they returned from vacation a month later and discovered that the front door was ajar.

Power Tools Handy, Also Screwdriver

Power tools have not obviated the necessity of frequent use of the ordinary hand screwdriver around the house.

Unfortunately, it is misused as often as it is used, not only when it is being employed for one of the tasks for which it is intended, but when it comes into play for mixing paint, opening cans, unsticking windows and various other self-destructive operations.

While a simple and apparently harmless tool, a screwdriver can be dangerous, both to the user and the wood or other material on which it is being used. If the tip is too narrow, it will mar the slot of the screw and make continuation of the drive-in process difficult and often impossible. If the tip is too wide, it will scar the surface of the material. And if it is rounded or beveled, it will slip out of the slot, damaging the screwhead, the work and probably you, sometimes resulting in a nasty injury.

You should always use the longest screwdriver convenient for the work, as more power can be applied with less effort. Make a pilot hole in the wood and hold the handle firmly in the palm of the right hand (assuming you are right-handed) with the thumb and forefinger grasping the handle near the ferrule. Steady the tip with the left hand until the screw has taken hold. Most important, be sure the blade of the screwdriver is in a direct, straight line with the screw.

To make a pilot hole, which should be slightly smaller than the diameter of the screw, use a Bradawl for a small screw and softwood. The hole should be about half the length of the screw threads. For a large screw and hardwood, the hole should be made with a bit or twist drill and should be nearly as deep as the screw. The latter also applies when using a brass screw.

The tip of a screwdriver should be straight across if it is to work properly. When it has become rounded, or beveled, it can be straightened with a flat file. The handle should be placed in a vise in a vertical position with the tip of the blade up wards, holding the file in both hands, one at each end, file the tip straight across, at right angles to the shank. If you use an emery wheel to accomplish the same result, be sure the blade is not held against the wheel too long or it will become soft. In either case, dip the tip of the screwdriver in cold water after every few passes with the file or emery wheel.

Besides the common screwdriver, there are several other types, including the Phillips, ratchet, spiral and offset. The Phillips merely has a different end to drive a screw with V-slots in it. The offset is for use where a common screwdriver won't fit. The ratchet and spiral have gadgets to them to permit screws to be driven faster. Each comes with directions for proper use.

Questions

Q. — We are getting ready to buy a house, but we are completely confused by all the terms being flung at us from every direction — ranch, raised ranch, split level, two-story, 1½-story, traditional, Colonial, contemporary, modern and many others.

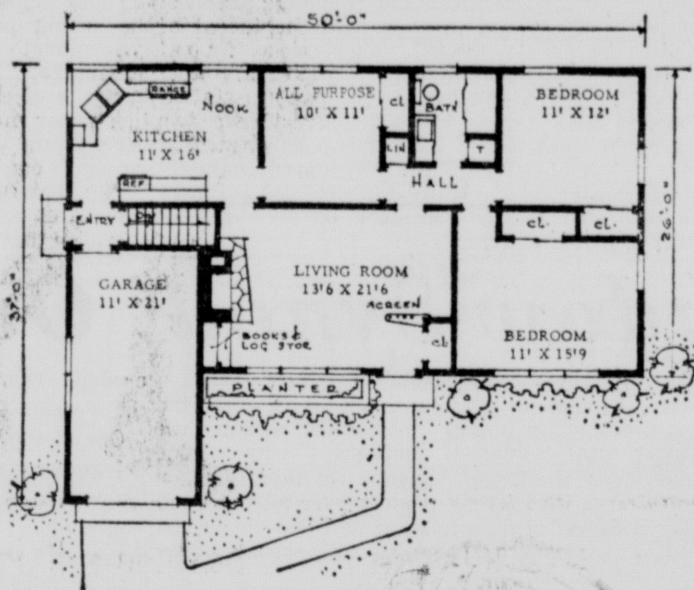

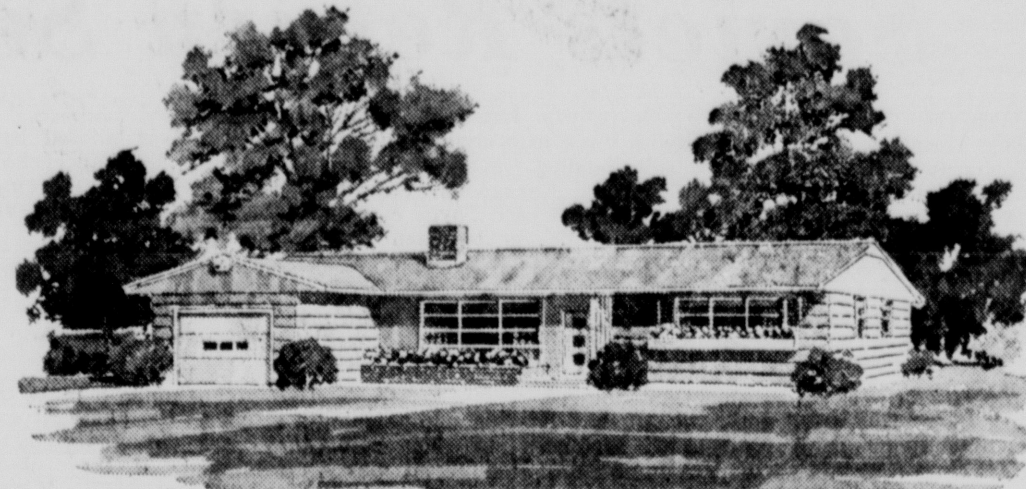

Can you straighten out for us exactly what all these things mean from a real estate standpoint? Of course, we have a general knowledge of what they mean, but we seem to run into contradictory opinions when we ask about them.

A. — You aren't the only ones confused. So are a lot of persons in the real estate business, since this is an era when many different types and styles of houses are mixed, with the result that hybrids outnumber the authentic. Thus, we'll give you general definitions. A ranch is a one-story house with all the rooms on the ground floor and spread out. It may or may not have a basement.

A raised ranch has the main floor a little above ground level, the basement higher than usual. A split level usually has three floors, but may have four. The bedroom level is usually the highest, the garage and recreation area the lowest. A two-story has the second floor directly above the first, but there are variations of this.

A 1½-story is basically a one-story house with partial space upstairs for extra rooms. A traditional is, loosely speaking, a house that has stood the test of time and may be from the early days of America or any other part of the world but especially Western Europe.

A Colonial is traditional, but refers to the types of house built by the colonists and borrowed from their countries of origin, changed to suit the conditions in the New World. A contemporary makes use of up-to-date styles and materials but is not as "way out" as houses generally tagged as "modern."

Check Out Hardware In a Jam

By MR. FIX

Too many people cannot resist reaching for a plane when a door sticks or does not close properly. While shaving off a chunk of wood may be the eventual answer to the problem, less drastic measures are generally called for.

Usually at fault is the hardware, not the door. Hinges and other hardware items work loose in time. If yours is a new house, they may not have been properly installed. Before you do anything else, check the hardware. Make certain that the screws that hold the hinges in place are good and tight.

Maybe your door closes easily but does not remain closed because the latch bolt isn't in the strike-plate opening.

If you examine the plate closely, you may find that the opening in it doesn't line up with the latch bolt. Try moving the strike plate a fraction of an inch up or down, in or out. Sometimes taking the plate off and filing the opening so that it is a little larger is enough and you won't have to move the plate.

Maybe the bolt doesn't reach the opening in the plate at all, without removing the door if even though it lines up with it, only one small spot needs tending. Shim the plate closer to the ing, you had better remove the door by placing pieces of cardboard if more extensive planing is needed.

If the door sticks and tightens the hinges doesn't cure the hinge pons out and lifting the trouble, then look else the door off. Plane along the where. Find out where the hinge side so that the lock will door rubs against the frame, not have to be relocated. It is A sheet of paper inserted be easier to take off the hinges. If tween door and frame should you do much planing, you have slide easily all around the to deepen the mortises for the door. Where it doesn't is where hinges on the door before you put them back.

If the door sticks all along the bottom, you will have to remove the door, stand it on one edge and plane the excess off the bottom.

Put a Door to Good Use

Want to encourage the back-to-schoolers in your family to hit the books? Give them desk space with lots of elbow room.

One very simple method is to buy a ready-made flush wood door, rest it on a horizontal support attached to the wall, and suspend the outer corners on chains attached to either the center ceiling hook, or one on each side if preferred.

Nail a 2 x 2 inch piece the same length as the door desk, and in the same finish, along the wall 30" from the floor or lower for smaller fry. Screw in a heavy hook, or hooks, to a ceiling joist, and attach chains at the outer corners of the desk. The solid door provides a handsome, sturdy working surface.

For the more ambitious handyman, shelving or wood file dividers may be attached to the desk above or below the working surface. If extra strength is needed, you can install diagonal braces, made from 2 x 4s, between the baseboard and the outer corners of the desk.

Traffic Flow Key to House

The traffic pattern is an important factor in one-level home planning, particularly in the dwelling of modest proportions. The greater the accessibility to all areas, the lesser the chance for confusion and intrusion as the family moves about its daily activities. An excellent example of good planning is contained in today's design of a two-bedroom modern ranch featuring an all purpose room for use as a formal dining room, extension of kitchen, den or an additional third bedroom.

The kitchen is fairly large with corner windows at the sink area with room for dining space along the wall to the right.

The living room, with its modern fireplace and big front picture window, has a comfortable and roomy appearance.

Exterior shows straight simple lines with a 3' overhang all around, outside walls consisting of stock wood shingles available at any local lumber yard. "The Anchorage" contains 1,080 square feet of living area plus 230 square feet for the garage.

Building plans contain section views for construction with wood, brick or stone, show complete 1/8" scale framing views of the front, rear and sides, and are complete in every detail and drawn to conform with FHA and VA requirements.

Schovel Answers Schirmer On Police Justice Salary

SAUGERTIES The Freeman October 9, Town of Saugerties Police Justice Schirmer states that he takes exception to his salary being used as a political football. Supervisor Schovel said. "The issue is not Police Justice Schirmer's feelings, the issue is the complete lack of logic used by the Town Councilmen in arriving at such a salary."

"In an article published in for a position that actually should be abolished.

"The police justice stated that he was 'elected in the fall of 1967 at a salary of $3,500 and this cannot be changed according to law.' This is not fact."

"Prior to that election there was no public notice of any kind that an increase in salary was contemplated or set for that position. The stated published salary as of August 1967 was $900 per year."

"The salary of the police justice court was not fixed at $3,500 in the budget. There was only a total (lump sum) in the 1968 budget. Nowhere in the town hall records could Councilman Turner or myself find anything to show that the salary for the outmoded and limited police justice court was to be jumped from $900 to $3,500."

"The law states that while salaries cannot be in excess of amounts stated in the budget, the Town Board need not fix salaries up to such total amounts."

"Bill 2365, April 24, 1967 which would abolish the office of police justice in the Town of Saugerties and provided for an additional justice of the peace, was vetoed by Gov. Rockefeller. The governor was in favor of abolishing the office but did not believe there was a need for a third justice of the peace and therefore vetoed the bill."

Supervisor Schovel continued, "At no time have the present town justices, one a practicing attorney, another a qualified businessman, or the clerk of the court, also an attorney, ever indicated that their case-loads were more than they could handle, or that they needed help."

"In view of these facts, I cannot understand what kind of logic the Town Councilmen used to arrive at a salary of $3,500 per year."

Justice Candidate Comments on Drugs

NEW PALTZ Arthur Bouchard, Democratic candidate for Town of New Paltz Justice calls for "more common sense and action" in attacking problems involving drug usage in this Ulster township.

Bouchard, who is challenging incumbent justice, Rexford Schneider, a Republican, noted two fallacious tendencies in dealing with the question of drugs.

First, he noted there was a tendency for some to characterize all young people with long hair as drug users, and more dangerous yet, there is the tendency to assume that all drugs are the same and that all drug users and experimenters are the same.

"The understanding of different drugs, their different effects, the difference in the people who use them, and the different reasons why people use them, are crucial problems to be explored," Bouchard says.

New Paltz is considered to be the prime area for drug traffic in the county and was identified several months ago in a national magazine as the second largest area for drug activity in the nation.

Bouchard, a New Paltz insurance representative, explains that there is a considerable difference between indulgence in a hard drug such as heroin and a soft drug such as marijuana and feels that punishment should reflect this difference.

"Should an experimenter with marijuana receive the same punishment as a heroin pusher?" Bouchard asks. "To do this would be about the same as punishing a petty thief and a murderer in the same way."

Conservatives Back Dems in Wawarsing

ELLENVILLE The chairman of The Town of Wawarsing Conservative Party has announced that his party plans to support two Democratic party candidates in the up-coming town elections.

According to Robert C. Frucht, the Conservatives have endorsed Joseph Stoekeler for supervisor and Frank Sahler for councilman. Both candidates are challenging Republican incumbents.

Frucht, who is the Conservative candidate for the Ulster County Legislature (Dist. 10), said that his party was endorsing Stoekeler and Sahler, because of their "diversified backgrounds and exceptional insight into the problems facing the township."

Specifically, the Conservative party chairman, lauded both candidates opposition to Wawarsing's recently adopted Sub-division regulations.

Frucht feels that the 45-page document is "an infringement and an extra burden on the landowners of the township."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 17, 1969

Withdrawal From Vietnam

What is surprising is that the Gallup poll found 43 per cent who do not want to bring all American troops home from Vietnam by the end of 1970—not that 57 per cent favor it. There is no real division between the President and Congress about bringing the boys home. The division is over timing and means.

The demonstrations against the war this week, which had the approval of North Vietnam, was a great display in favor of the enemy; it should have been against North Vietnam, to compel it to agree to a mutual withdrawal that could lead to a cease-fire and the end of the war. That would make sense. To bring all the American troops home now before South Vietnam is ready to defend itself would be to forget the sacrifices our dead and wounded have made for the sake of assuring self-government to South Vietnam.

How does that help the United States? North Vietnam has occupied three-fourths of Laos by force, since it agreed to stay out of that country; it has 30,000 men in Cambodia against the wishes of the people and government; it is infiltrating Thailand; and it has been fighting to take over South Vietnam for 15 years after signing a treaty dividing the country. It is trying to conquer all of Southeast Asia, which would bar that very strategic area to us.

Personally Involved

In 15 cities across the country the last three weeks, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has been urging businessmen to become more involved in urban affairs, in problems posed by crime, education, housing and manpower. In many of these cities, they found businessmen already deeply involved and eager to do more.

The education gleaned in workshop sessions held in these cities should be useful here and in any city concerned about the woes that beset most communities today. A brief summary is given below with that in mind:

Crime—Support job opportunities so that persons won't go back to crime. Help police in prosecuting crime.

Housing—To meet today's housing needs during inflation, aid housing development corporations, generate private money in housing as an investment, push for rehabilitation of old housing.

Education—Begin partnership of business and schools to prepare for 21st century technology.

Manpower—Recruit, train and retrain the hard-core unemployed. Tie training to existing jobs, at competitive wages.

An alert business community will add more problems oriented to the community. This is enough for a good start.

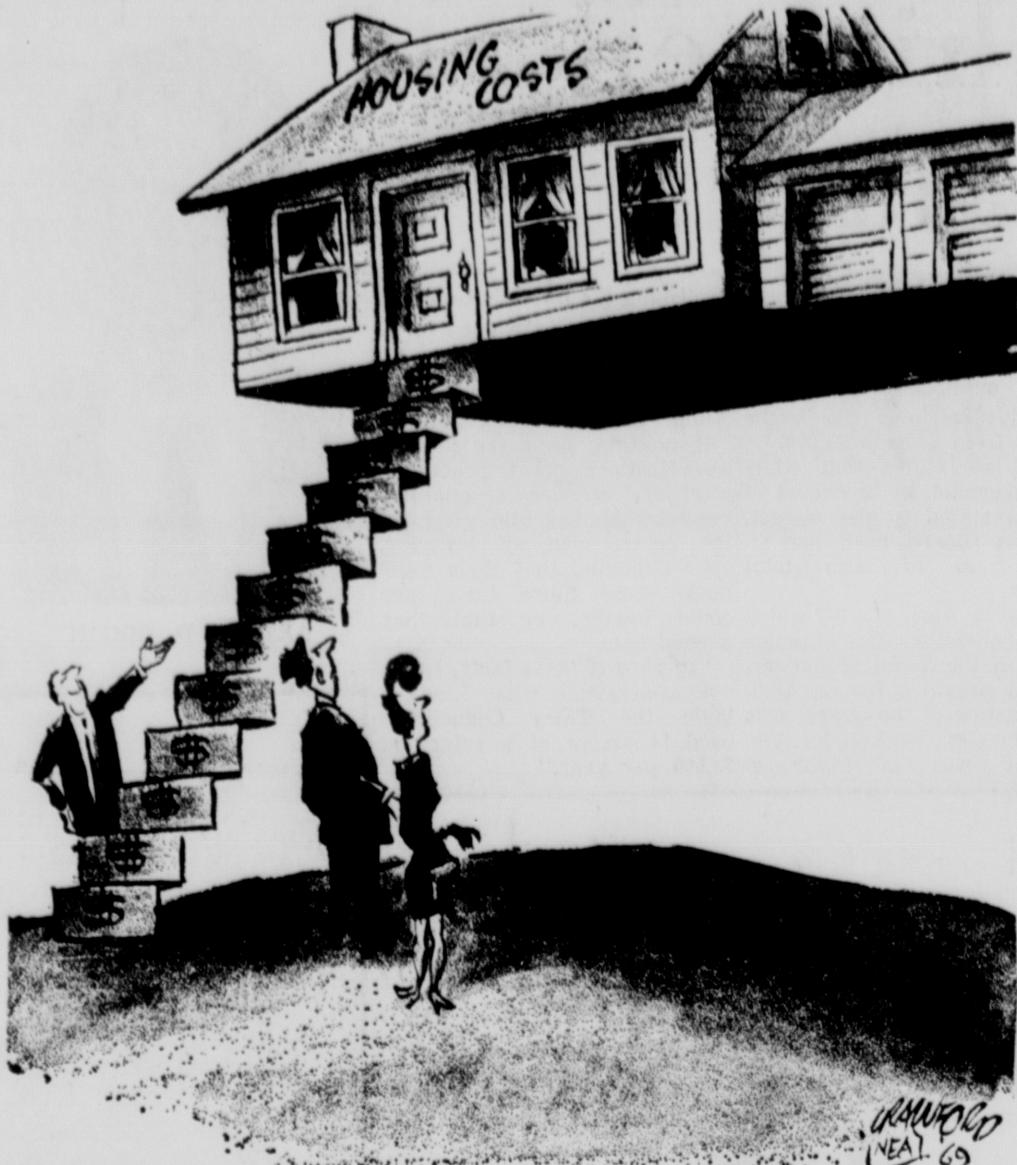

Prince Sihanouk, who broke diplomatic relations with the United States when American troops chased enemy troops across the border into his country of Cambodia, finally admits that 40,000 Communist soldiers found sanctuary there. He tried to get Communist China to help him get them out, but was ignored. Asian proverb: "The wolf, invited to tea, stays to dine on the host."

The present federal minimum wage is $1.60 an hour and AFL-CIO efforts to increase it to $2.00 and possibly $2.50 are doomed as inflationary. The higher the wages, the higher the cost of living. Until wages and prices hold at a given level, inflation will continue to be a menace.

David Lawrence Says Communists Overjoyed By U.S. Demonstrations

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans who took part this week in "demonstrations" on campuses and in cities across the land are supposedly in favor of a so-called "moratorium" in the Vietnam War. But few have checked the word to find out what it means and its relationship to the Vietnam War problem.

Webster's dictionary defines "moratorium" as "a legally authorized period of delay in the performance of a legal obligation or the payment of a debt; a waiting period set by an authority; a suspension of activity."

But no exact formula of postponement, deferment or inactivity is being outlined. Presumably the main purpose of the whole "moratorium" idea is to try to show that public opinion in the United States is against the Vietnam War and wants it "suspended" at any cost.

Ignorance of the issues involved in the Vietnam War is widespread in this country. Most of the "demonstrators" do not know that they are helping the cause of the enemy. President Nixon expressed his reaction to organized protest of this kind in a letter to a "concerned student." He wrote:

"If a president — a n y president — allowed his course to be set by those who demonstrate, he would betray the trust of all the rest. Whatever the issue, to allow government policy to be made in the streets would destroy the democratic process. It would give the decision, not to the majority, and not to those with the strongest arguments, but to those with the loudest voices. It would reduce statecraft to slogans. It would allow every group to test its strength not at the ballot box but through confrontation in the streets."

Representative Richard H. Ichord, Democrat of Missouri, Chairman of the House Internal Security Committee, says that the Vietnam "moratorium" is a "propaganda maneuver" designed and organized by Communists and other revolutionaries who desire a victory by the North Vietnamese, not to help, but to weaken and harm the United States.

If any proof were needed that the Communists are overjoyed by what is happening in the United States this week, a United Press International dispatch from Saigon on the night of October 13 states it plainly as follows:

"Radio Hanoi in a broadcast early Tuesday hailed the Vietnam moratorium in the United States and said it had put the Nixon administration in a 'very difficult and confused situation.'"

The broadcast said the demonstrations being planned showed that the Communist fight in Vietnam was "for peace, justice and the right cause... We believe solidly that the autumn struggle wave of the American people will bring magnificent successes."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers made a significant statement on Sunday about the real status of the plans for the withdrawal of troops from Vietnam. He spoke on the NBC television program, "Meet the Press," and said in part:

"Who was George Wallace's running mate? Easy. General Curtis LeMay, the button pushing king — right? Who was the star of Our Dancing Daughters, a daring film of the 1930s? If your answer is Joan Crawford, you are a wizard at this game. Who fired a shot at President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt in Bay Front Park, Miami in 1932? Zangara, of course."

Who is reputed to have phoned RFK just before she committed suicide? Marilyn Monroe, although it has never been proved.

Which President of the United States studied fundamental economics after he got to the White House? If you say Warren Harding, you should remain silent on political questions. It was Dwight D. Eisenhower. Which plane holds the world record for speed flight? The U.S.'s X-15.

What is the name of the photographer who allegedly was dumped by Mrs. Onassis? Mel Finkelstein of The News, match. He was the only photog who had another cameraman ready to record the event for history. Who was the tallest woman in the world? No one would guess this one. Miss Waailik Callandji of Greece, who was 7 ft. 6 1/2 inches tall.

The important thing about Trivia is not to introduce the game at your house unless the furniture and rugs are insured. Also your friendships. This is a game with built-in

"If we set a target date for withdrawal of troops, unrelated to the events in South Vietnam, we do two things: One, we would make negotiations impossible because obviously the enemy isn't going to negotiate if he knows that in six months we are going to withdraw our troops."

"Secondly, if we did that, the enemy would just wait until the propitious time and then make an attack so that we would endanger the lives not only of our own troops, but of the South Vietnamese. I think that any thoughtful observer of the scene recognizes that if we just withdraw our troops there would be a tremendous massacre on the population in South Vietnam."

"In addition to that, it would create so much instability in the area that it could be very dangerous to the security of the world and, secondly, it would be a violation of everything that we promised, not only to the people of South Vietnam, but the people of Southeast Asia."

A concurring view came from Hubert Humphrey, former vice president and the Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1968, who said in a speech at Duluth, Minn., on Monday that the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam is "impossible," he added.

What is really needed is a "moratorium" on the spread of uninformed opinions concerning a delicate matter of international policy which ought to be left to the President of the United States to decide as he has all the facts.

hostility. You might ask what woman produced the most children an get no responses. It was Mrs. Fyodor Vassilev, a Russian, who died in 1872 after giving birth to 69 children in 27 confinements.

Who is the world record father? I submit that it is of small interest because the problem of becoming a father is not nearly so enervating as becoming a mother. In 1835, a sultan of Persia died after becoming a daddy to 154 sons and 560 daughters. His name was Fath Ali Shah and he attributed everything to lack of t.v., radio and gin rummy.

Smallest bird? That, of course, is the Cuban hummingbird, which weighs two grams. The biggest game bird, in case you are being carried away by this type of game, is the South African bustard, which averages 40 pounds. The rarest of all birds is the Indian Spotted Owl, which has not been seen since 1872. The Hindus probably ate them.

Trivia is — take my word for it — a fascinating game. It produces non-speaking husbands and wives who have not nodded to each other in years. Brodhead maintains that, if you are happy in your current relations with your spouse and your friends, play Canasta. But if you want to sink the shiv between the ribs of one and all, serve drinks first and then suggest: "Let's all play Trivia." If someone says, "What's that?" you are on your way to a lively evening and a nearby police station...

Jack Anderson Says Military Brass Is Split Over More Aid to Chiang Kai-shek

TOKYO — President Nixon's brave attempt to reduce the U.S. build up in the Far East has got the brass hats more agitated than any event since the military pay raise was turned down.

From Thailand to Taiwan, the generals are firing off hot memos left and right to fight off the cutbacks. The bureaucratic bombardment, apparently, has shaken the Pentagon.

This column has examined the secret exchange, for example, between the Pentagon and the military advisory group on Taiwan. The advisors are commanded by peppery Maj. Gen. R. G. Ciccolella, who believes passionately that the U.S. should provide Chiang Kai-shek with more, not less, military aid.

If our nuclear bases on Okinawa are dismantled to appease the Japanese, for instance, Ciccolella wants to relocate them on Taiwan. Old Chiang has already constructed some handy runways, storage tanks and other facilities as an encouragement. This however, would upset the Chinese communists with whom Nixon is trying to restore a dialogue.

Ciccolella has also protested vigorously against trimming U.S. support for Chiang's armed forces. From the secret crossfire between Ciccolella's group and the Pentagon, here are excerpts which illustrate the opposition Nixon is encountering in the Far East:

Chiang's Objective
The Pentagon contends that Chiang's forces "are more than adequate" for defending Taiwan and the offshore islands against a Chinese communist amphibious assault.

However, their "primary objective," claims the Pentagon, "has been to regain control over the mainland provinces. On that basis, Chiang has been able to justify maintaining land and amphibious forces which substantially exceed the defense requirements for Taiwan, the Penghus, or the main offshore islands. The additional divisions would be used in operations on mainland China."

Retorts Ciccolella's group: "Although the USG (U.S. Government) does not officially endorse the back-to-the-mainland program, and it is probably that the vast majority of Chinese military personnel have had few real illusions concerning the practical aspects of this program, however, it has served as the cement to hold the GRC (Government Republic of China) intact in the absence of any real or emotional rallying point..."

"We do know privately," adds the Taiwan team confidentially, "that the GRC has considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingency use in mainland recovery."

The Pentagon, questioning the value of Chiang's extra forces, points out: "The presence of large GRC army has not caused a reduction in the CPR (Chinese Peoples Republic) threat to either Southeast Asia or Northeast Asia because the CPR has not diverted sizeable defense forces to the Fochow Military Region opposite Taiwan."

Red Chinese Threat

"DIA (Defense Intelligence Agency) has concluded," adds the Pentagon, "on the basis of limitations on CPR logistic capabilities that the CPR could not mount major offensives on more than one front. The CPR threat to Northeast or Southeast Asia would be reduced (if) it became clear that a major offensive against Taiwan was being launched. Some U.S. forces maintained for the defense of either Southeast Asia or Korea could then be redeployed to Taiwan. A U.S. commitment of forces should be more than adequate to deter the CPR."

Ciccolella and his advisers disagreed. "The CPR military capabilities," they warn, "will improve over the next decade with continued emphasis on the improvement of nuclear weapons capabilities... The CPR has the capability to erupt numerous conflicts which would immobilize U.S. forces in other areas of Asia negating any U.S. Assistance to the GRC."

Ciccolella is particularly eager to modernize Chiang's small navy. The Pentagon, however, insists that "the U.S. now maintains the complicated and expensive naval weapon systems necessary to defeat either the USSR or CPR in an Asian sea war. This U.S. capability is more than sufficient for any combination of naval threats."

Chiang's Navy

Because the U.S. seeks "to avoid a direct US-CPR confrontation," however, the Pentagon has furnished Chiang with enough ships to patrol the coast, supply the offshore islands and ward off a Red Chinese amphibious attack.

The Chinese Nationalist navy "will retain these capabilities," in the Pentagon's opinion, "through FY 73 (Fiscal Year 1973) without ships or craft largely because the CPR does not appear to be developing naval offensive forces."

Contradicts the Ciccolella team: "Estimates of CPR shipbuilding are poor, but information is available which indicates that the naval shipbuilding is progressing at a faster rate than indicated (by the Pentagon). We believe that the situation is underestimated..."

"The GRC has not successfully engaged the ChiCom navy in several years having lost three costly engagements in 1965. (The Pentagon) study does not credit the ChiCom navy with the superior performance capability indicated above, nor does it take into consideration the rapid obsolescence of the GRC naval ships."

At this time, it isn't at all certain whether President Nixon will be able to carry out his cutbacks or whether the entrenched brass hats in the Far East will win the secret debate.

Controversial Vietnam War Threatens Democratic Process

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Political Analyst

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

The Vietnam war, more than any except the Civil War, has torn into our political fabric an set loose a train of consequences so grave that some may endure for decades. The casualties in political life stand out:

Lyndon Johnson toppled from the presidency barely three years after the "triumphs" of his Great Society legislation were hailed.

Sen. Robert Kennedy struck down by an assassin in a campaign he would not have entered but for the war.

The swift demise of former Michigan Gov. George Romney as a 1968 presidential prospect because he could not seem to come to grips with the war issue.

As the possible maker of a peace arrangement, President Richard Nixon may escape the perils. But no one can be sure until its effects are seen. An administration man said of Vietnam: "This may be one of those problems that destroys everyone who touches it."

National Purpose

Never before has there been such a questioning of national purpose, so widespread a mood of self-doubt among leaders and led, so staggering a loss of confidence in authority (especially military), such danger to the whole democratic process.

Thoughtful political leaders do not believe the war alone produced the great ferment that floods the country today. The racial struggle, rising in intensity, is plainly a prime cause.

Moreover, distrust of politics, politicians, generals and businessmen has been growing for years. The broad chasm between promise and performance in many big social programs gives democracy a hollow look to many caught in poverty and discrimination.

But the controversial Vietnam war hammered all these things into frenzied focus in a great telescoping of time.

'Children's Crusade'

In 1968 some of the young briefly found hope when antiwar forces thrust up Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, but his "children's crusade" burned out quickly against the frictions of established politics.

At the other end of the spectrum, hawkish Americans gave George Wallace of Alabama a new legitimacy, a new string to his bow, when they found him attuned to their war views.

Yet these movements only deepened the divisions in the badly Sundered Democratic party. Today the rift is so great that the fabled "Roosevelt coalition" of labor, blacks, ethnic groups and the young is on the verge of being wrecked for good.

The practical consequence to politicians and parties are easiest to gauge. Harder to fathom are the deep psychological and social currents stirred by the war, and yet the impact of these upon American political life today and tomorrow has to be immense.

The same able young Republican who says we were unprepared for the war's jarring effects argues that what Vietnam did was bring into nearly simultaneous focus a whole series of major dilemmas that otherwise might have matured at different times, with less intensity.

Among these he would list concern over the fairness and wisdom of the draft, the question whether this or any great nation should ever again be involved in even the smallest war, the need to re-evaluate our role as a great power in today's altered world, the steady discrediting of the military's heretofore nearly unassailable "expertise" and the ruboff of this on politicians who take their counsel in both war and peace.

Bundle of Dilemmas.

This big bundle of dilemmas, says the young politico, was rushed to a head by a war deeply unsettling and puzzling.

Why was this "limited war" in Vietnam so evidently unlimited in its political and other impacts?

No sure answers exist. But author Barbara Tuchman, searching out the roots of World War I, wrote in "The Proud Tower" that after that most bloody conflict the whole Western world was afflicted with "the incurable wounds of disillusion."

The disillusionment must surely have been cumulative, as men wondered more and more about their talent for destruction. Beyond doubt, by the fact that Vietnam was "television first war."

What would we have thought had cameras been on Guam's beaches in World War II when barely 50 of a 200-man Marine company survived enemy fire in our first assault? Or at Iwo Jima, or Omaha beach?

Origin of Struggle.

For Vietnam brought with it, first, the inevitable puzzle that goes with "limited war." If it is not for our survival, what are we doing there? If it is, why is not the whole nation engaged?

Beyond that have been our bewilderments over the origins of the Vietnamese struggle, the nature of the people, the resolves and purposes and capacities of the enemy, the ability of "our side" to govern fairly and sensibly, the uncertainties even with peace.

From disillusionment bewilderment, a deep sensing of things wrong without being sure what they are or how to set them right. The American people plunged themselves into political, social and psychological chaos. By their own public testimony, radicals have seized this golden chance to destroy this society. Vietnam was their weapon.

The nation of course will never go back to being what it was, politically or otherwise, even if the radicals do not have their way.

There is no point in trying to guess whose political careers may still be made or unmade in consequence of this war, or what new forms and processes of government may emerge to replace those that are crumbling and setting so many Americans adrift.

Probably the crisis in confidence which the Vietnam war built to its crescendo will not end until the citizenry grasps that what has been shaken is not just trust in leaders, in government, but confidence in themselves and their ability to meet challenges.

Mexican Envoy Raps 'Intercept'

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ
A high-ranking Mexican diplomat told a sparse gathering of student and faculty at the State University here, that a recent effort by the U.S. government to stem the flow of dangerous drugs across the border was "damaging to the international commerce on both sides."

Consul General Eugenio V. Pesqueria, appearing at New Paltz in conjunction with the college's fourth annual International Festival, said that "Operation Intercept" was a "bureaucratic error" based on the misconception that every Mexican is a likely subject for smuggling marijuana.

During "Operation Intercept," all traffic entering the U.S. from Mexico was halted and searched for narcotics. The plan, which lasted for about two weeks, was called off.

Planned for the parking area near the First National Bank in the village, the display will include a 1933 Ford on a garage lift with tools used to work on the classic car.

A parade is planned by the businessmen for 3:30 p.m. through the village with most of the cars taking part. The display is open free to the general public from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., a spokesman said.

Candidates Are Heard

OLIVEREA
Candidates for Shandaken township offices from the three parties were heard at a session this week of the Big Indian-Oliverlea Board of Trade.

Ray Dunn, Republican candidate for town supervisor in Shandaken, told the board that the aim of the board this year should be "the maintaining of an even scale of operating expenses and thereby holding down taxes."

Dunn was followed by members of the Democratic and Independent parties who also took part in a question and answer period before the board.

Saugerties VFW Joins in Stand Backing Nixon

SAUGERTIES
The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 5034, in Saugerties has joined the national VFW stand that "unanimously urges that our government continue to seek victory in Vietnam and that all of our citizens lend their full support to the men on the fighting front."

The Post said "Frankly, we are sick and tired of listening to a very vocal minority undermining the bargaining position of our President and in so doing endangering the lives of our men on the fighting front."

The Saugerties VFW called for "the silent majority" to make itself heard in support of President Nixon's efforts. "No one seeks peace more urgently than the Veterans of Foreign Wars, but we will not seek peace at any price which is what the vocal minority is calling for today."

Detectives Ask Astrologer To Find 'Zodiac' Murderer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 10-man team of detectives has consulted an astrologer for help in its search for a man who calls himself "Zodiac" and brags of five murders he has committed in the past 10 months.

Captain Marty Lee said Thursday the astrologer gave the detectives background on the science which apparently fascinates the slayer, who says his next target may be a busload of school children.

"We are going to have to learn something about it (astrology)," Lee said. "I am admittedly apprehensive about the near future."

The killings began last December when a teenage couple was slain in a lovers lane near Vallejo, about 30 miles northwest of here. Another girl was slain in Vallejo in July, when "Zodiac" began sending coded letters to newspapers and police departments in the bay area.

Translations of his earlier letters indicated he felt killing animals. "Later notes were written in ungrammatical English and began: 'This is the Zodiac speaking.'"

The fourth slaying occurred Sept. 27 near Lake Berryessa, where a college coed was stabbed to death and her boyfriend was seriously injured. The attacker wrote the dates of the Vallejo killings on her car door.

The fifth victim was Paul Stine, 29, a cab driver killed and robbed in San Francisco last Saturday night. A taunting note and a bloodstained piece of Stine's shirt was mailed to a San Francisco newspaper later in the week.

"Zodiac" concluded his note with a chilling threat. "School children make nice targets," he wrote. "I think I shall wipe out a school bus some morning. Just shoot out the front tire and then pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out."

Captain Lee noted the shortening time span between the killings—seven months between the two Vallejo incidents, almost three months until the slaying at Lake Berryessa, and only two weeks between that killing and the death of Stine.

"It doesn't make us any happier that they are getting

Mantle, Kitty Moderate Panel On Narcotics

COLONIE, N. Y. (UPI)—Former baseball great Mickey Mantle and actress Kitty Carlisle Hart moderated a panel discussion on drug abuse attended by about 200 parents and teenagers Thursday night in this Albany suburb.

Capt. Arnold Bardossi of the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation said drug arrests in the Albany area have risen 150 per cent this year. Bardossi, who predicted an even higher rise in drug arrests, said a half million dollars worth of drugs have been seized in the area since January.

Bardossi warned that use of marijuana, once considered mainly a problem for the cities, has moved to rural areas and there is reason to believe that grammar and high school students have taken it up.

Others on the panel included Stephen Chinlund, director of the Manhattan Rehabilitation Center; James Allen, a former addict who runs a rehabilitation center in Harlem, and Dr. Henry Brill, director of Pilgrim State Hospital.

The discussion was sponsored by local groups and the State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission.

Nine Escape Prison Bus, Two Attorneys Questioned

MONTREAL (UPI) — Two and possibly two, lawyers. He did not elaborate. Remi Paul, Quebec minister of justice, in turn said the Thursday's escape of nine prisoners aboard the "Bordeaux Express," the largest escape in the city's recent history according to police.

The "Bordeaux Express" is the name given a prison bus which carries prisoners from Bordeaux Jail to the Montreal Courthouse. There were 32 prisoners aboard when the nine overpowered their four-man police guard and then engaged police in a series of wild shootouts in the city.

The lawyers were not formally arrested, or charged with any wrongdoing, but Montreal Police Director Jean Paul Gilbert said he blamed the escape on "complicity" by one, bus beside the driver.

The nine then made their dash for freedom. Escaping along with Bonami were Richard Blass, 23; Denis Thoin, 31; Gilles Gingras, 23; Rene Ferland, 25; Michel Bergeron, 18; Michael Kelly, 20; Roger Marceau, 36, and Michel Marion, 29.

Six of the nine were not even scheduled to appear in court Thursday. Their presence was requested by someone who phoned the court clerk's office Tuesday, said he was a lawyer and asked that the men be brought to court Thursday.

Marion was recaptured almost immediately after the escape. Bergeron and Kelly were recaptured later during raids in the city's East End.

Blass and Thoin were captured after police reportedly fired into a Sabre Street apartment and used tear gas bombs.

Blass and Thoin finally crawled out of the building on hands and knees down the front stairs, along the sidewalk and to a police cruiser after Mrs. Blass left the tear gas filled apartment carrying a baby.

Det. Sgts. Bob Cote and Alfred MacCarone went into the apartment and found another woman who they took in for questioning.

There were two other shooting incidents when the escapees fired on a traffic policeman whose patrol car was stopped behind the prison bus and when police opened fire as the escapees attempted to duck through an apartment building. One policeman was slightly injured.

Two Firebombs In School

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (UPI) — Two firebombs were thrown into the crowded lunchroom of troubled Mount Vernon high school Thursday, but no one was injured.

Two black students were seized by school personnel in the lunchroom and were turned over to police.

The Molotov cocktails burst into flames on the floor but were quickly extinguished by teachers and lunchroom guards before they could do any damage.

School officials believe the incident was prompted by the arrest of three black student leaders who were blamed for disorders at the school Tuesday.

Man Charged With Larceny

ELLENVILLE — Joseph Wynkoop, 18, of 6 Canal Street, this village, was arrested Thursday night on a warrant charged with petit larceny involving the alleged theft of a tape recorder. He was arraigned before Police Justice Roald Elias, who fixed bail at $1,000 and adjourned hearing until Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 6:30 p.m.

In lieu of bail the youth was committed to the county jail pending disposition of the charge.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks opened higher today in brisk turnover.

Hopes for peace and for an easing in tight money could help generate further demand, but there is some feeling that the market may move in a "sideways direction" until there is some hard news on one or both of these fronts.

Steels showed scattered strength, as did motors. Electronics were mixed.

Charge Frisco State Grades Tied to Stand on Unrest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Teachers at San Francisco State College have been accused of giving inflated grades to students according to whether they supported or opposed campus unrest last year.

The campus newspaper Phoenix said a computer study showed that more than 75 per cent of all grades given in the semester last spring were As and Bs, averaging 3.22 on a scale rating 4 as an A. This compared with the previous record high average of 2.57 in 1964.

Grades were given by a number of professors as rewards for striking or staying away from classes," declared Dr. Frederick Terrien, chairman of the Academic Senate, composed of 42 of the school's 1,300 full- and part-time instructors.

But students and professors who supported a campus strike declared inflated grades were given to students who sided with President S. I. Hayakawa. He took over the 18,000 student campus last November and called police to restore order after four months of student and teacher strike.

Erwin Kelly, associate professor of economics and president of the American Federation of Teachers local which supported the strike, commented:

"In several departments where there are many AFT members the average grades were lowest. You might find an individual professor who rewards strikers, just as you will find some who rewarded anti-strikers."

The 1968 unrest arose from demands for black and ethnic studies programs.

The college was put on two years probation last May by the Western Association of Colleges, which threatened to withdraw accreditation, meaning that other colleges would not accept San Francisco State students for transfer or graduate study.

"The real scandal will come," Terrien said, "when we get down to individual cases—grade by grade, professor by professor."

In only one of the college's eight major academic divisions did C grades outnumber A grades.

Police Probing Rubbish Fire

KINGSTON — Police were asked by fire officials to investigate a fire of incendiary origin which burned a pile of rubbish at the entrance to a three-story vacant brick building at 55 Broadway Thursday night.

Firemen responded to an alarm at 9:20 p.m. and extinguished the flames with pressurized water and a booster hose. The property was formerly occupied by Webber's Pharmacy. Deputy Chief Robert Maines was in charge.

Another fire quelled by city fire fighters occurred in the basement of Gold's Apparel store at 322 Wall Street shortly before noon Thursday. Pressurized water and CO-2 chemicals were used to douse flames that came from the furnace. Ejectors were used to clear the area of smoke. A malfunction of the heater apparently caused the blaze. Deputy Chief Hugh Greer was in charge of firemen.

USDA Food Tips For This Weekend

The following guide to the nation's food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Interior for UPI.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — USDA's food experts report that food shoppers this weekend will find good selections of meat and poultry and some choices in fresh vegetables and fruit in food stores and supermarkets. All areas will feature a good variety of seafood.

Broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys head the list of good meat buys. Beef continues to be abundant and shoppers should see good varieties of ground beef, roasts, steak, liver and stew meat. Smoked picnics, hams, and spareribs will be featured in some areas for weekend shopper. The most abundant fish in all areas are Maine sardines, canned tuna, and fish sticks and portions, according to the U. S. Department of the Interior.

Fresh vegetables in best supply are onions, potatoes, cabbage, and celery. Apples, grapefruit, and grapes are the most abundant fruit.

Other foods on USDA's plentiful foods list for October are fresh pears, canned peaches, rich, and dry split peas.

USE CHERRY JUICE

Save the juice drained from maraschino cherries. Use it to color and flavor cream cheese for pretty lunch-box or tea-party sandwiches.

A new love interest often leads to a petition for divorce, Judge Anthony J. Mansour said. Without a new heart-throb, many persons never would begin divorce proceeding, he feels.

Some men start looking for new companions because of the ones they have at home, Standal said. When a man goes home night after night and finds his wife looking like the wrath of God, the women he sees at work begin looking better and better to him.

At the same time, those men often interest the women who went to work to escape the monotonous world of diapers. Judge Newblatt said when many wives reach the age of 25 or 26, and realize that they are still attractive to men, they want to escape.

Other women go to work outside their homes because they need the money. Maybe there's just one too many "easy installment payments" for a husband's paycheck to cover.

Husband and wife begin seeing each other less frequently, and trouble begins as a closeness and understanding disappear, Judge Elza H. Papp said.

She said another problem is caused by the wife who decides that the money she earns is hers and doesn't belong in the family coffer. That weekly check may turn out to be smaller than it looks if the woman decides to get a divorce and support herself.

Standal said a woman's standard of living inevitably goes down after a divorce. Before being divorced, a woman may complain that her husband squanders his paycheck. Afterward, she finds he wasn't squandering all of the money, but by that time, she may have lost her rights to any part of it. The courts rarely grant alimony to a woman who is about to support herself and has no children.

If she can't support herself because of her health, or because she has never worked, she will probably get alimony.

If she has custody of children, child-support payments will help with the expenses, but such payments are never enough to pay for everything, Judge Papp said.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute
MOTHER AND EX-DAUGHTER-IN-LAW REMAIN FRIENDS

DEAR MRS. POST: My son and daughter-in-law have been divorced. There has always been a good relationship between my daughter-in-law and myself. They were simply incompatible. Now I have moved away from their vicinity and I don't know whether it will be proper for me to correspond with her or not. There are four children. My son sees them every other weekend. I don't want to seem disloyal to him, but I feel he is as much to blame for the breakup as she.

The children are friendly and want to see me, and I them, but I think my son will not like it too much if I write to her. I would very much appreciate any help you can give me. — Mrs. S.

DEAR Mrs. S.: You should certainly correspond with your son's ex-wife as often as you wish. Of course, you should not "take sides" against him in any way — that would be disloyal. But to continue your friendship with your daughter-in-law and, through her, your grandchildren, is natural and right. And I compliment you on your fair and unprejudiced attitude — one often missing among family members affected by a divorce.

Seating Divorced Parents at a Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: A few weeks ago I read in your column the correct procedure for a wedding with divorced parents attending. I believe you said that the father of the bride should sit with the mother in church, and the father's new wife should sit directly behind the family. Since I am not quite sure that this is the correct way you stated this, could you please repeat the answer? — Lorraine

Dear Lorraine: Let me hasten to correct your impression! Here is the correct seating arrangement in the church when the bride's parents are divorced: The bride's mother sits in the first pew — with her present husband if she has remarried. If she has not, she may be accompanied by any member of her immediate family. The bride's own father sits in the second pew (or sometimes the third, if brothers and sisters of the bride or the maternal grandparents are seated in the second pew) with his present wife.

If the bride is not on good terms with a stepparent, or if there is great bitterness between the first and second wife, the stepmother (or the stepfather, as might be true in the first case) should be seated further back or possibly not attend at all. The same holds true for parents of the groom.

Give a Hoot for a Halloween Cake

HALLOWEEN RAISIN PUMPKIN CAKE

For something to hoot about, these wise old owls suggest a pumpkin cake that conjures up a smiling Jack O'Lantern with California raisins. It's the season's treat, sure to make a hit with active little ghosts and goblins. There's a treat for you too when you see how simple this raisin cake is to make — no tricks!

Begin with readily available convenience foods — California seedless raisins, yellow cake mix and canned pumpkin. Once the batter is prepared, simply bake it in an oven-proof bowl. Turn out and you have a natural pumpkin shape ready to frost with orange buttercream icing. California raisins are just right for making the eyes, nose and mouth of our jolly pumpkin.

We think you'll find this cake so delicious you'll want to carry it into the festive season ahead. Use your imagination — bake in a variety of shapes and sizes and trim it holiday style.

Halloween Raisin Pumpkin Cake

- 1 (1-pound 2.4-ounce) package yellow cake mix
- 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
- 1 cup canned pumpkin
- Water
- Eggs
- 1 cup chopped California seedless raisins
- Orange Buttercream Frosting

And to keep those peeping little ghosts and goblins from pulling any tricks on Halloween, give them a favorite treat — sweet, delectable raisin "little packs" available in ½ and 1½-ounce sizes. They are sure to leave your door grinning happily.

Combine cake mix, spice and pumpkin. Add eggs and water as cake package directs, reducing water by ½ cup. Mix according to package directions. Stir in raisins. Turn 4½ cups batter in greased 5½-cup oven-proof mixing bowl. Spoon remaining batter into 4 or 5 greased 6-ounce custard cups, using about ½ cup batter for each. Bake large cake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) 1½ hours and small cakes about 30 minutes. Let cakes stand 10 minutes then invert on wire track to cool. Frost large cake with Orange Buttercream Frosting, stroking from bottom of cake to top to give ridged pumpkin effect.

ORANGE BUTTERCREAM FROSTING: Beat together until smooth and creamy 2½ cups sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons soft butter and 2 tablespoons milk. Add few drops orange food coloring to give desired color. If necessary, beat in a few drops extra milk for easy spreading consistency.

The Community Chest and You YMCA Developing for the Future

KINGSTON planned development is that of a new building. It was announced last week that construction of the new Kingston-Ulster YMCA facility on a site adjacent to the existing building on Broadway and Pine Grove Avenue is expected to begin early in the spring. A reevaluation of design is now being conducted to reduce costs, and redesign of the structure is planned to accommodate in excess of 5,000 members on a scheduled basis.

The YMCA feels it is a part of the total development and redevelopment of the area and is making preparations for the future. The school population of the county is estimated in excess of 40,000 and is projected at 46,000 by 1975 when the population is expected to exceed 159,000. The YMCA is determined to have a physical plant and a program adequate for this growth. It is planning now to expand its present services appreciably not only in the immediate wide spectrum of activities for Kingston area, but to extend its entire family including activities to the 27 municipal swimming instruction, physical fitness, 20 towns and five villages throughout the county, with of mer camping, parties and dances, leadership training and special social events.

Acceptance of YMCA activities in the past few years alone has demonstrated the inadequacy of the old building to accommodate even present day services. The YMCA program covers a wide range of activities for the entire family including swimming instruction, physical fitness, all kinds of sports, summer camping, parties and dances, leadership training and special social events.

YMCA is a Community Chest agency which receives its operational funds from the Chest drive. No funds collected during the drive now in its final weeks can be used for the construction of the new facilities.

For Perrine's Bridge --- A Plug, Also a Boost

By JEAN F. DOLAN

RIFTON — Restored Perrine's Bridge is making news again on state and national levels.

The Empire State Courier, publication of the New York State Covered Bridge Society, has devoted its entire October issue to the Rifton span, giving statewide coverage to its history, restoration and formal dedication.

A Boost From Fish
Meanwhile, efforts to expand the Perrine's Bridge Park complex have received a boost from Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. In a recent letter to Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, Fish pledged his support of the park and indicated he would seek federal funds for the project.

The bridge has long been the project of preservation efforts which culminated with the formal dedication ceremonies in late June of this year. With the span at its restored best, efforts have been underway to enhance the general area, creating mini-parks at the Town of Rosendale and Town of Esopus approaches.

Other Endorsements
Endorsement of the park plans also came from the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, Kenneth P. Pangburn, president, in a letter to County Legislature Chairman Savago urged allocation of funds for the project. "I understand that considerable recreational facilities will be available for the public if the funds are available for development," Pangburn said, noting that the area could be used for various outdoor character building activities of the Boy Scouts.

The battle of the bridge has been a long hard fight led by the Perrine's Bridge Committee with John Grady, chairman; Elmer Carney, vice-chairman; and Thomas Orr, treasurer.

The committee fought to keep the historic span from falling into the Wallkill River while seeking financial aid to insure restoration. Through a matching grant of state and county funds totaling $50,000, restoration was finally undertaken after more than two decades of preservation efforts.

Search for Materials
In order to insure authentic restoration, the local woods were combed for the properly aged trees to duplicate the original construction. In all being phases of the repair, materials had to comply with specifications of the Perrine's Bridge built in the 1840's.

Work on the bridge proper was completed late in 1968 and formal dedication took place on June 29 of this year.

The state covered bridge society's publication took note of this achievement by devoting its current issue entirely to Perrine's. In an editor's note, Courier publishers explain the action as follows:

"It seemed appropriate to honor Perrine's Covered Bridge by using articles pertaining only to it in this issue. This is Bittersweet."

Also noted that Perrine's Bridge is the last true Burr Arch bridge of any size remaining in New York State.

Carney Compositions
In addition to full picture coverage of the dedication ceremonies, the eight-page publication devotes space to articles and a poem by Perrine's long time champion Elmer Carney. The articles are an outgrowth of his extensive research in connection with the historic bridge and will be incorporated in a book he is writing entitled "The Bittersweet."

Historic Covered Bridge

Big things are planned for restored Perrine's Bridge. Spotlited in the current issue of the New York State Covered Bridge Society publication Empire State Courier, the historic span at Rifton will be enhanced with parks at its approaches if plans continue at the present rate of achievement. The bridge was restored to past glory through the efforts of the Perrine's Bridge Committee and matching state and county grants.

Barbara will be gone for five minutes. Her car, gone forever. And some young boy is in deep trouble.

Leaving the keys in the ignition seems a small oversight to her, but it's a large temptation to an impulsive teenager. 777,800 cars were reported stolen last year... more than half of them by young offenders. And owner carelessness was most often involved.

Your new car dealer is concerned about the problem

On Another 'Met'—Bing Calls It Grave

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, says, "We have not canceled the season, but the season is gradually canceling itself."

Bing, it was learned Thursday, made this statement in a letter offering refunds to season subscribers. He called the labor dispute which forced postponement of the Sept. 15 opening "grave."

A series of meetings was called today in a major effort to resolve the dispute which has dragged on since June.

Harry Van Arsdale Jr., president of the city's Central Labor Council, was to meet in the morning with labor officials. He also has called a 2 p.m. meeting with the union officials and Bing.

Unions representing the orchestra, chorus and ballet have rejected the Met's wage offer which Bing claims would make the performers the highest paid in their fields in the nation.

The Met offer would bring musicians, now earning $16,468 a year, up to $20,000 by the 1971-72 season; choristers, now earning $10,669, up to $14,500; and dancers, now earning $6,700, up to $10,000.

All the unions have offered to work without a contract so the season could open, but the Met refused even to go into rehearsals. Bing said the offer was only a "half truth" because the unions reserved the right to strike at any time of their choosing.

Bing, who noted the opera operates at a $3.5 million deficit annually that is picked up by subscribers, said the new contract offer would increase the deficit to $5.8 million.

Though he has offered refunds, Bing said most subscribers have said their checks would be donations to the opera. He hoped that would be a pattern.

The Met, which opened its doors in 1883, has missed only one season. A fire that destroyed the interior of the old house at 39th Street and Broadway forced cancellation of the 1891-92 season.

House Speaker Boots One Aide
For His Stock Market Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

House Speaker John W. McCormack has suspended one of his top legislative assistants without pay, after the aide was accused of intervening on behalf of a firm allegedly engaged in stock market

McCormack suspended Dr. Martin Sweig, the Washington Post said today, in the latest

Guest Soloist for Season Premiere Of Hudson Valley Philharmonic

EILEEN FARRELL

Soprano Eileen Farrell will be the guest soloist for the season premiere of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra at the Community Theatre on Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

She will sing Wagner's "Wesendonk Lieder" and the Beethoven aria "Ah Perfido" with the orchestra under the direction of conductor Claude Monteux.

The program, inaugurating the Philharmonic's eleventh season in the Hudson Valley, will also include the Haydn Symphony No. 99 in E flat major and Ravel's "Rhapsodie Espagnole."

Described by The New

Yorker's Winthrop Sargeant as "the finest dramatic soprano now before the public," Miss Farrell has been called a "one woman Golden Age of Song." Her Metropolitan Opera debut in "Alceste" in 1960 evoked critical acclaim for the clarity, power and richness of her voice.

Miss Farrell's artistry on the concert stage is equalled by her popularity in the world of jazz and blues. This dual talent was first demonstrated at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, when Miss Farrell appeared with the Louis Armstrong jazz band in 1959 — an event later broadcast on the Ed Sullivan Show.

Look Magazine described Miss Farrell's voice as "an awesome force. Note for note it is perhaps as close to a flawless soprano instrument as exists in the world today. It can grow majestically loud without losing its lovely quality, grow treacherously high without turning shrill and float out the most hushed of pianissimos without losing its presence."

Seasons tickets are still available from the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society Inc. Box 1 Uptown Post Office, or by calling Mrs. Amos Newcombe, in Kingston.

Philharmonic Group Plans Benefit Projects

People who think music is important in Ulster County are busy devising projects to maintain the income necessary for Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra to continue.

More than 90 per cent of Philharmonic's 82 musicians are Hudson Valley residents. Approximately 209 new people will be enjoying HVP concerts this year. Total membership is not yet complete but to date there are 100 more subscriptions than last year's total. Bob Winrow is subscription chairman for this year.

Even the New York Philharmonic and the Boston Symphony cannot cover the cost of operations with the income from ticket sales alone, without placing the price of tickets out of reach. Various ways are being devised by the local group to maintain the income necessary.

Francis X. Grieml Jr. of Saugerties and Brock Brockenshaw of Woodstock, respectively, are donating percentages from business profits and supplying artistic notes for gift ideas toward HVP benefit. Also a wine and cheese tasting party has been scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 9 at the Crystal Room of Governor Clinton Hotel when Bob Schneller will provide tasty and unusual wines and cheeses from Europe, serving them in friendly, relaxed surroundings.

A New Life for Abandoned Church; Now a Swinging Night Club

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK (NEA) — It isn't very often one goes to church and has one's palm read.

This happened recently and the palmist did say the subject had an inquisitive mind.

The reading was done in a converted 1856 German Lutheran Church whose nave was softly colored in pink, with gold and royal purple accents and dominated by a mural of an amorous devil and submissive angels who appear to enjoy the whole new scene. Certainly the Sagittarian subject with a tattletale palm had to return to the scene to get the facts.

A second visit to the unusual setting revealed that the artist who created the mural for a new boite, The Sanctuary on West 43rd Street near the Hudson River is not enjoying the current view.

Once seminude, the devil and angels now discreetly wear, among other things, peacock feathers. All at the request of the New York State Liquor Authority.

Such a compromise in the conversion of a former church into a swinging club is a sign of the times, Kurt Meyer, a partner, explained ruefully.

However, Meyer and his partners (four principals and 15 minor stockholders) said they were happy to go along. The Sanctuary was nicknamed "The Church," another named for raised eyebrows and harrumphs. It was padlocked for a few weeks but now is in full operation.

According to Meyer, visiting clergy say they do not find The Sanctuary offensive and may use it for some rock music sessions. Police, too, are happy the abandoned church building is occupied profitably. Most recently it was a haven for derelicts and teen-agers who liked to break stained glass windows and wreck old church pews, among other things. Prior to that it had been a rehearsal hall for off-Broadway shows and before that a warehouse. Ninth and Tenth Avenue neighbors — a mix of Italian and Puerto Rican — like the new business in the area and the club employs help from the neighborhood.

An Austrian, Meyer has been in New York 20 years and is typical of the club's partners, having been an executive with Walter Kidde and Co. (stockbrokers).

"I've always wanted to get into entertainment," Meyer said. "I had a feel and liking for it and last December I looked for an investment. There was nothing exciting. I felt that discotheques as such were on the way out, primarily because of poor management, lack of ideas and incentives."

How does The Sanctuary differ from a discotheque? The partners decided, Meyer said, "I wouldn't be for the 'kids or teenie-boppers' and not a singles hangout similar to those mushrooming on this city's East side."

"We are licensed as a 'couples only' operation which means we can refuse unaccompanied men and women," Meyer explained. This cuts out many visiting businessmen who like to cruise "recommended" spots. "By doing this we feel we solve 90 per cent of the problems singles joints face."

All the partners are successful and young (30s and 40s) and the attitude is "we wanted to create a comfortable place for our own kind."

Meyer said "We have a warm atmosphere — it's like being at a big party in someone's home. Our waitresses are dressed discreetly — no micro-skirts or bunny-type outfits."

Price helps maintain the almost private club atmosphere for such patrons as the Kennedy relatives, the Astronuts, Huntington Hartford (A&P heir) and movie mogul Joe Levine. The minimum is $6 week nights and $8 week-ends and drinks range from $2 to $2.50. No food is served.

It took five months and approximately $250,000 to transform the dismal gray interior into a "homey" room. Decorator Larry Barscher chose pink for the main room with pink light bulbs framing stained glass windows because it is a flattering color. The original church pews were refurbished in pink and now flank a dance floor. Often live performers work before a handsome, and original but not working, pipe organ. The arches of the vaulted nave are gold. Meyer said The Sanctuary has been termed a cross between El Morocco and Salvation.

Eventually there will be a recording studio installed in the basement where visitors can watch and be part of a live recording session.

A corporation man for years, Meyer said, "Too many creative people are held back by company restrictions."

The Sanctuary represents little holding back but Meyer added, "I don't feel we have offended anyone." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

A 19th Century Church on New York City's West Side now reverberates with rock music from 10 p.m. to 4 a.m. Pink-painted benches flanking dance floor are original pews. Lighting is theatrical and the tab expensive. Three of successful businessmen who formed club partnership for investment (inset) are shown from left. They are Arnold Lord, Lopez, Kurt Meyer and Francois Massaquoi.

Major Hoople Picks Rondout Ganders Over Pine Bush

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
The Original Tight End
CLAN MacGREGOR CASTLE
Egad, friends, it came as quite a shock to me last week when my rather ponderous protegee called me here at the castle to inform me that we were running a very poor two-for-six in scores here in Ulster County, particularly in the Ulster County Athletic League. When the Kingston Port Jervis score came over, then I was quite sure that we were in for a bit of trouble.

However, the Newburgh Mid-dleton score was reported, a plus for our side, and then the Onteora Liberty affair came through on my computer, partially saving my reputation.

But, the best was yet to come as your peerless prognosticator garnered a perfect six for six in Dutchess County, making a score of nine right, 4 wrong for a .692 percentage. I have now hit 25-36 for a .694 mark. Near perfect, I daresay. HaKaff, Kaff Kaff!

On the national scene, I had 29 right, 16 wrong for a .645 score. Thus far, nationally, me and my associates have tallied 136 right and 66 wrong with two ties for .673.

Harrumph!

Now, what, you may ask, is he doing in that Scottish castle. Well, friends, the Earl of MacGregor, Head of the Clan, fears that some unfriendly spirits are roaming about the grounds, attempting to do bodily harm to the Earl and his family.

Knowing of my great works in the clairvoyant, The Earl has asked me to try and seek out the spirits. I can safely report that the only spirits here at Clan MacGregor Castle are in a bottle and are of the bonded variety. James Bonded, that is. Hee, Hee, Kaff, Kaff.

Now, as I work to clear my mind of the spirit world, here are this week's selections.

Poughkeepsie 21, Kingston 6

The Pioneers have too much going for them and the Maroons don't seem to have enough. Gary Stauderman may have a field day.

Time Out

project themselves back into the pennant picture. Pine Bush too high right now. Rondout's home field advantage will help.

Highland 28, Wallkill 0

The Highlanders had a tough game last week with the Bushmen. While I and everyone else around here figured that Lem Atkin's boys would go all the way. They'll get well in this one. The score could be even higher.

Liberty 23, Marlboro 20

Liberty put it all together last week against Onteora. They have been waiting a long time to score like that. The Dukes have everything going for them; size, speed, one of the best backs and backfields in the Mid-Hudson area; the only thing they lack is the ability to score in the clutch. HaKaff, Kaff, Kaff.

Onteora 14, New Paltz 6

Onteora will be fighting to come back after last week's debacle against Liberty (58-3). New Paltz has been fighting just to stay alive. Actually, it could go either way.

Arlington 14, Lourdes 8

Both teams have tight defense. Lourdes has edge in this department. Arlington has it all, but is up one week, down the next. This is a down week, if they go 3-1.

We foresee a high-scoring affair with Theismann. Gate-undefeated for the season. Haa rrrumph!

Other Scores
Beacon 8, Roosevelt 6; CFMA 6, NYMA 0; Dover Plains 14, Pine Plains 8.

Now on the national scene for more perfect picks. Kaff, kaff. The game of the day will be contested at South Bend, where Ara Parseghian sends his "Theismann Trophy" ace named Joe (who is not to be confused with the Heisman Trophy) against Southern California. The Trojans journey to the Mid-west sporting a 4-0 record while the Irish stand at 3-1.

Lourdes Stops Maroon Jayvees

Our Lady of Lourdes built up a 16-0 lead and went on to defeat Kingston High Jayvees, 22 to 6. The loss was the second in three starts for the Maroons.

Al Williams scored from 10 yards out on an off tackle burst to give Kingston its lone score in the third period. The TD climaxed a 60-yard drive.

Another Maroon drive of 60 yards was ended on the 5-yard line by the final whistle.

Lourdes 8 8 0 6-22
Kingston 0 0 0 6-6

The top of the order provided the daily double at Monticello on Thursday night when the 1 and 1 combination returned a payoff of $11.80.

The opener was a pace over the mile which was captured by a 4-year-old mare, Adios Lorr driven by her part-owner and trainer, Dominic Macedonio. They made the mile in 2:12.2, and the win represented Adios Lorr's third for 1969. This season she has also achieved 1 second and 3 show finishes.

The second race was a trot, taken in a time of 2:09.3 by El Diablo, Thomas Perez driving. El Diablo is a 3-year-old colt, the son of Hickory Smoke-Gracious by the Intruder. This Lourdes has his second win a row. Driver Kenneth Heenev, by winning the sixth race became the Mighty M's dash-winner this year at the Sullivan oval, besting the previous record of (Coco) Cormier.

Mets' Victory One of the Great Sports Sagas

SONS OF THE OLD SOD — Down there somewhere is the baseball diamond where the amazing New York Mets won the World Series away from Baltimore. The Mets ran for safety after the final out and the fans literally took over the field, ripping up bases, turf, anything loose or poorly attached to take home a souvenir. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elephants can fly, water can flow uphill, and rocks can float. Why not?

The New York Mets are the amazing world champions of baseball and, as a banner unfurled in the middle of Shea Stadium asked during the wild celebration by their fans on Thursday, "What's next?"

The fly ball stroked by Dave Johnson of the Orioles that nestled in the glove of Mets' left fielder Cleon Jones at 3:15 p.m. EDT didn't merely complete a 5-3 victory in a baseball game that gave the Mets the 1969 World Series, four games to one.

It wrote an incredible climax to one of the greatest of sports sagas — the story of a team that began in 1962 with the selection of obscure Holie Landrieth as the first Met, staggered through years of bad baseball and worse jokes, and then came to a happy ending that even Hollywood would reject as pure corn.

"A mazing," croaked Casey Stengel, who managed the Mets in their comic early days and was on hand to see the windup of the story. He's called the Mets that many times, but now it's a fact and not a joke.

"The Mets are not just a lucky team," said Manager Earl Weaver of the defeated Baltimore Orioles amid the disappointment of a season in which they won the American League's Eastern Division by 19 games, swept the A.L. playoffs in three straight games, won the opening game from the Mets — and then collapsed in four straight defeats.

"They are a very good team," insisted Weaver. "You sports writers have been downplaying them all season. They have great pitching and they make all the plays. The one thing that surprised me was I didn't think they would make more runs than us."

Top factors in the Mets' rout of the Orioles were:

...Pitching. The Orioles got only 23 hits, a record low for a five-game Series, and nine runs.

...Met defense. Two stunning catches by Tommie Agee in the third game and the 'catch Swoboda made Wednesday," said Robinson. "I'm a little disappointed but not stunned at what happened to us. The Mets did what they had to do to win."

It was Brooks Robinson, however, who summed up best the feelings of the Orioles.

"They (the Mets) played better than we did, that's all. That's the way it goes. We'll just have to go get 'em again."

his pitching changes all clicked. Hodges if there'd been a switch. "No," he snapped. Clendenon, a refugee from several clubs who slugged three homers and won the automobile three batters to turn loose pandemonium. Fans ripped up the field, even the grass... The players took champagne showers... President Nixon phoned Hodges... The organ tooted happy tunes... The Mets parted into the night.

Once upon a time, at another little surprise down in Yorktown, Va., when the British surrendered to George Washington, a British band picked exactly the right song to play for the occasion. For that one and this — a little thing called: "The World Turned Upside Down."

I Believe

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

FLUSHING
I entered Shea Stadium as a cynic on Tuesday and I left it as a believer on Thursday.

I leave it to the other press-box pundits to heap upon you the accolades, clichés, hosannas and whatever else was pertinent to the incredible saga of the New York Mets.

I come to you as a man who has seen the light. I have embraced the faith and the mystique of the Mets.

I was prepared to give my testimonial right in the middle of the diamond at Shea, but I was surrounded by too many partisans intent on tearing up the pea patch.

I wouldn't have believed it unless I had seen all five of those fantastic ball games. Not in a million years.

And, I don't think it could happen again in another million years.

I repeat. I repent. I am a believer.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles accepted defeat like champions Thursday and refused to make plate umpire Lou DiMuro the fall guy for their World Series defeat.

The Orioles, who had entered the Series a heavy favorite, lost their fourth game in a row to the New York Mets, 5-3, and were disappointed but not shocked at the amazing finish to one of the most exciting Series ever played.

"The Mets are a good ball club," said losing manager Earl Weaver. "You guys (sports writers) have been down playing them all year, saying they were lucky. They're not lucky and they're not grem-lins."

"Their pitching was outstanding," Weaver added. "No other pitching staff has contained us this well over the course of the year. The thing that surprised me most about the Series was their ability to get more runs than us. I thought we'd get more runs than they would but we didn't."

Weaver, who was ejected from Wednesday's game by umpire Shag Crawford, was involved in two discussions with plate umpire DiMuro Thursday, both of which played a major role in the outcome. In both instances the Mets benefited from the calls, but Weaver would not blame either for the Orioles' defeat.

The first call DiMuro made was in the Orioles' half of the sixth when he did not award Frank Robinson first base after he claimed to have been hit by a pitched ball. DiMuro claimed the ball hit the bat, and Robinson then struck out after being administered first aid in the dugout.

DiMuro's second decision came in the Mets' half of the sixth when he awarded Cleon Jones first base, after the Mets had showed him the ball with a scuff mark on it. Donn Clendenon followed with a homer and the Mets cut the Orioles' lead to 3-2. What bothered Weaver was DiMuro's inconsistency on the calls.

"DiMuro got the play right on Jones, that's what he's supposed to do. He didn't get Frank's play right. The pitch hit Frank on the right thigh. What bothered me is that he didn't ask (Lee) Wayer (first base umpire) for a decision. He (DiMuro) said he saw the play," said Weaver.

"Then on Jones' play, the ball bounced into the dugout and the Mets bring him the ball and show him a scuff mark on it. An he gives Jones first base. How does he know that they didn't switch balls on him? But, that's not what beat us." Frank Robinson, who displayed a red bruise on his thigh where Jerry Koosman's pitch

NEW YORK (AP)—Dallas, Los Angeles and Oakland, the only unbeaten teams in pro football, should roll along in weekend games and the San Francisco 49ers may finally get into the winner's circle for the first time.

While Tommie Agee, Jerry Koonsman, Donn Clendenon, Ron Swoboda, Tom Seaver and Al Weis have been carving up the Baltimore Orioles, the pro football season has moved past the midway mark. If the World Series lasted any longer it would be battling with the Super Bowl for the sports page headlines.

Maybe the football-baseball conflict was a helpful distraction. Anyhow it helped the old hand picker to his best week of the season, 12-1 with 7-1 in the National Football League and 3-0 in the American Football League. Let's try again, hoping the roof doesn't cave in. All games are Sunday unless otherwise noted.

NFL

Cleveland 27, Pittsburgh 17 (Saturday night)—Leroy Kelly is back in stride and Browns have beaten the Steelers four straight since 1964. Loss of Roy Jefferson could be fatal for Pittsburgh. These two will be brothers in the AFL division next year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Joan Payson, the owner of the New York Mets, credited her team's Cinderella victory in the World Series to guts rather than destiny.

"They're a gutsy bunch of boys, that's all," said this 66-year-old dowager who plunked down $5 million from a personal income estimated at $200 million eight years ago to acquire the Mets.

Mrs. Payson thought of her players' safety before her own during the wild melee that erupted on the field when the fifth game ended Thursday.

"Those kids tried to get on the field even before the last out," she said. "One big youngster climbed through our box before the players got off the field and I told him, 'You better be careful! What if you hurt one of the players?'"

Mrs. Payson's box is next to the Met dugout and she was hustled through the dugout after the game to avoid the crush of exuberant fans.

"I got out just in time," she said. "As it was, one of the youngsters knocked me down."

Mrs. Payson visited her players in the dressing room and her face was wet with tears and champagne when she came out. She talked with President Nixon on the telephone, then went to a private reception in the Mets directors' room, and then stopped in the Diamond Club to visit with the players wives.

Someone asked her what she would do now that it was all over and she said, "I don't know what I'm doing tomorrow, I don't even know what I'm doing right now."

Mrs. Payson was accompanied by an entourage of family which included her husband, Charles Shipman Payson. For Mr. Payson, a 71-year-old industrialist who is wealthy in his own right, the Mets victory was particularly sweet.

"Today is my birthday, and what a present!", he said.

Joan Payson is as earthy and affectionate as he is rich and a knot of fans cheered as she left Shea Stadium. As she climbed into her Bentley, a youngster presented her with a paper cup filled with a clump of grass.

"It's from center field," the boy said.

Mrs. Payson said thank you and promised she would keep it.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The World Series dream of the Baltimore Orioles has turned into a nightmare. Or, even worse.

"Even in a nightmare you couldn't dream up the things that happened to us," outfielder Frank Robinson said. "Hollywood wouldn't believe it, either."

If any of the Orioles do suffer mid-winter insomnia, they'll no doubt envision the New York Mets making fantastic catches or standing in the way of line drives.

Time after time the Mets chalked off budding Baltimore rallies with their gloves as they won the World Series with four consecutive victories after losing the opener.

By actual count, the Orioles slammed four outfield line drives in the second game and five infield shots either on the ground or in the air, with shortstop Bud Harrelson making a diving catch ner was going to score from third base anyway, to tie the score. Had the ball gotten past, we would have won to even the Series 2-2."

But the catch was made, and the Mets are the new champions of baseball.

ARLINGTON

Kingston High School's soccer team won its tenth straight contest this season without defeat, as they topped Arlington High, 3-2, here Tuesday.

The Maroons found themselves behind quickly in the game as Bob Miller put Arlington out in front, 1-0, on a penalty kick. They didn't rattle as Pad Nugent headed a throw-in by Pete Fowler, to Brian Williams who slammed in Kingston's first goal tying the score 1-1.

Kingston took only 27 seconds to score its second goal. Tom Barton dribbled upfield, hit Pad Nugent with a pass and Nugent pushed in the go-ahead goal.

Ted Williams tied the score at 2-2, when he took a cross pass from Bill Corsones at the 9:40 mark. The Maroons evidently playing no harder than they had to, came right back with the go-ahead and final goal of the game. Larry Feeney scored on an assist from Brian Williams at the 10:30 mark of the third period.

dies are really up for this one for revenge of the upset loss at Kingston earlier this year. If the Maroons can win at Middletown the DUSO crown should be their's. In the DUSO, Kingston is 4-0 and Middletown, 4-1.

Kingston Faces Poughkeepsie

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON Head Coach Frank Modica leads his Kingston High School charges across the mighty Hudson Saturday for a non-league encounter with arch-rival Poughkeepsie at the Pioneers' field. The game will start at 1:30 p.m.

This will be a tough game for the Maroons, coming off last week's loss to Port Jervis in the DUSO League opener as the host club is undefeated with a 3-0 record, tied for the lead in the Dutchess County Scholastic League Central Section with Arlington and rated by many experts in pre-season as the team to beat this year in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Poughkeepsie's last victory was a crushing 30-8 win over the Sawyers of Saugerties. The Pioneers have also defeated Cardinal Farley Military Academy, 28-6, and Mount Vernon High, 25-8.

Two of the three scores, with the exception of Saugerties' tally came in the last period and was scored against Pioneer reserves.

Stauderman Stars

The main man on the Poughkeepsie staff appears to be the quarterback, Gary Stauderman. Stauderman has passed and ran for at least one touchdown in each game thus far, including three running scores against Saugerties. A fine passer, with a good head for calling the right plays at the right time, Stauderman will undoubtedly be the All-DCSL quarterback this season.

Joining Stauderman in the backfield will be halfback Dan DeCuitis and fullback Tony Johnson. Both these boys have the ability to break for a TD on any play and afford Stauderman more than enough time to pass when they are called upon to block.

Joe Johnson, at 6-4, 200+ pounds, is at tight end and does it all, catch, run and block. He anchors the line, both defensively and offensively and will probably be an All-County pick himself.

Blocking for the Pioneer backfield in the middle of the line will be Dennis Ladzinski. Ladzinski is one of the hardest hitting linemen in the area and is a sure tackler on defense as well as blocker on the offense.

Coach Don Smith's boys like to run out of varying formations, including the Texas-Wishbone, Power I and Split T. They play a tough, alternating defense and have a tight, well-drilled secondary.

Kingston has had trouble moving on offense and may, according to Modica, make some offensive changes. Glenn Littlefield, who played so well at quarterback in the second half against Port Jervis, will probably share more of the quarterbacking duties with Rick Sorenson, though Sorenson will continue to be the starting signal-caller.

Geaneuleus On Offense George Geaneuleus will move back to running half, while retaining his starting position on the defense. The other running back position will be split between Joe Reilly and Jesse Adams. Tony Corioia will remain at fullback.

The Maroons received some crucial wounds in last week's tilt. The principle one being Dale Whitman, who will be out for at least two weeks with a blood clot in his leg. Big Bob Clausi, one of the best linemen in either league, is also a doubtful starter.

"We must move the ball more," said Modica. "We need that spark that hasn't been in evidence since Marshall Byrd's for us. However, if we don't injury. But these boys are stop Stauderman on Saturday and I look for them to come back strong once we get the right combinations going noon," concluded the coach.

Palmer and Sanders On Comeback Trail

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Ar-nold Palmer is back. And Doug Sanders vows he'll be back. "I'm not giving up," the colorful Sanders said Thursday after shooting a six under par 65 for the first round lead in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"If I don't improve," he noted "I'm going to have to be out there in those Monday qualifying rounds, and I don't think I'd like that."

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA National Championship more than two months ago, came back with a solid 69.

"It was a pretty mediocre round," said the 40-year-old Palmer. "I hit some good tee shots and some bad ones. My irons still leave a lot to be desired, but they may come around, I missed a couple of short ones, too. I didn't play that well, but I didn't play that badly either," he said. It was Palmer's first competitive round since a pain-wracked 82 in the PGA's round that many thought signalled the end of his brilliant career.

Hayes, 29, competing in only his second tour event, Menne and Merrins, a 37-year-old teaching pro from Los Angeles, all had 66s. Howell Fraser and Steve Spray followed at 67.

Don January and Bob Ross were in a group of seven at 68, with Orville Moody, Jack Nicklaus, Bob Goaly and defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez in a big crowd at 69.

Lee Trevino had a 72, PGA champ Ray Floyd a 74 and British open king Tony Jacklin a 70.

Sanders, one-time glamor-boy of the tour now a graying 36, hasn't won since 1967, has made only $20,720 on the tour this year and is in danger of losing his exempt status.

He held a one-stroke lead over a trio of longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching pro Ed Merrins—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA National Championship more than two months ago, came back with a solid 69.

Introducing A Used Car Guarantee . . .
It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we pay half you pay half deals."

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and Performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical

He's Something of a Wonder

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Harry Dolan, the ex-janitor who gained prominence when he wrote "Losers Weepers" for "NBC Experiment in Television," is a stocky, pleasantly rumped, humorously self-effacing man. His eyes twinkle, his mustache is modest and just right, he laughs easily and often. Even if he weren't black, he would still be beautiful.

He is a serious writer, and it will take more than video success to satisfy him. He has the usual self-doubts of all good writers, and he has had nights with the good. He was up the other night working on a play, "The Iron Hand of Nat Turner," and suddenly, as he says, the daylight was coming up, and he wondered if he is as good as people say he is. Of course he is.

But he is more than that. He is something of a wonder, for while most writers can simply concentrate on their writing, Harry looks after a lot of people—not only his wife and six children, but the fledgling for Harry, who says, "In 1964, I was gonna get me a real good job—a supervisor." He told my wife I would give janitor's job—a supervisor. He myself one more year to be a laughs now. He earned the writer. If I didn't make it, I right.

Jersey Teeners Suicides

Moratorium Martyrs

CHEWS LANDING, N.J. (UPI) — "Why? — Because we love our fellow men enough to sacrifice our lives so that they will try to find the ecstasy in just being alive."

That—in their own words—was why two high school students martyred themselves by running carbon monoxide into a parked car on moratorium day.

Officials say it was planned at least a day in advance.

The two—Craig Badiali and Joan Fox, both 17—left 24 neatly hand-printed letters addressed to parents, friends, and officials of Highland Regional High School, where they were both seniors.

Both sets of parents have maintained a calm and dignified silence about the double suicide. Close friends are too choked up to try to explain it. Casual acquaintances cannot understand it.

The two were found Thursday morning in a car packed on a dirt road about 10 miles from Glassboro, N.J., where President Lyndon B. Johnson met Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin two years ago and where Wednesday Badiali and Miss Fox attended a moratorium rally at Glassboro State College.

A friend of Miss Fox who saw the couple after the rally—the last person known to have seen them alive—said Joan told her she had been disappointed by the protest meeting because the participants were acting too much in the spirit of fun.

The friend talked to Miss Fox at about 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Camden County Medical investigator Thomas R. Daley said the two were asphyxiated between 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday by fumes from the car's exhaust, carried into the vehicle by a vacuum-cleaner hose run through a hole in the floor.

"Why?" asked the suicide note made public by Daley early today.

After the War . . .

A Residual Force in Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the United States plans to keep a residual military force—perhaps numbering in the thousands—in Vietnam after the war is over.

Such a residual force, Laird told an impromptu news conference at the Pentagon, would be comprised of a "training and advisory force."

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. military command said today it has lost 5,993 helicopters and airplanes in the Vietnam War—their total value conservatively estimated at $6 billion.

An announcement from headquarters said 28 of the aircraft were lost in the past nine days despite a lull in fighting which dropped U.S. combat deaths to their lowest point in nearly three years.

The lull reached well into its fifth week this morning, with military spokesmen reporting 39 guerrillas slain in five Saigon-area clashes. No American casualties were reported.

Commanders in the northern war zone said three Americans were killed and 17 wounded in 25 scattered overnight clashes there, killing a total of 23 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The Communists carried out 21 mortar and rocket attacks against Allied targets during the night, causing light damage or casualties but no American fatalities, military spokesmen said.

In reporting the U.S. aircraft losses since Jan. 1, 1961, headquarters said there was no record of the total of men killed in crashes or downings. Many of the fixed-wing planes went down over North Vietnam.

About half were lost in combat to groundfire while the other half were destroyed in shelling attacks or rendered unusable by breakdowns or crashes in noncombat situations.

Eight waves of B52 bombers kept up their pounding of retreats where Allied intelligence says the Communists are regrouping for a new wave of attacks.

The bombers, biggest in America's arsenal, concentrated five of their raids on a relatively new target—the jungles 19 to 24 miles northwest of Pleiku, a major city in the Central Highlands.

Military spokesmen belatedly reported one U.S. Marine killed and 15 wounded in an overnight battle.

Laird has said he hoped the approximately 300,000 combat troops in Vietnam could be withdrawn in a "reasonable" time. This would leave about 200,000 noncombat support troops. The residual force would be left after the support units are gone.

Laird was not specific as to the size of the residual force; but he said it would not be anything like the number of troops in Korea, although it probably would be larger than the 6,000 to 7,000 troops who were in Vietnam in the early years of the Kennedy administration.

Laird also said the United States never actually had the capability to fight 2½ wars and does not have it now. He referred to statements of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara who said U.S. military forces were arranged to be able to handle a war in Europe, a Chinese invasion of Southeast Asia and a small conflict in the Western Hemisphere—at the same time if need be.

Laird said the goal was never actually provided for in final defense budgets.
